Part Ⅲ Reading Comprehension（45 minutes，25 points）

Directions： There are five passages in this part. Each passage is followed by five questions or unfinished statements. For each of them there are four choices marked A，B，C and D. Choose the best one and mark the corresponding letter on the ANSWER SHEET with a single line through the center.

Passage One

Americans usually consider themselves a friendly people. Their friendships，however，tend to be shorter and more casual than friendships among people from other cultures. It is not uncommon for Americans to have only one close friend during their lifetime，and consider other "friends" to be just social acquaintances. This attitude probably has something to do with American mobility and the fact that Americans do not like to be dependent on other people. They tend to "compartmentalize"（划分）friendships，having "friends at work"，"friends on the softball team"，"family friends"，etc.

Because the United States is a highly active society，full of movement and change，people always seem to be on the go. In this highly charged atmosphere，Americans can sometimes seem brusque（无礼的）or impatient. They want to get to know you as quickly as possible and then move on to something else. Sometimes，early on，they will ask you questions that you may feel are very personal. No insult is intended；the questions usually grow out of their genuine interest or curiosity，and their impatience to get to the heart of the matter. And the same goes for you. If you do not understand certain American behavior or you want to know more about them，do not hesitate to ask them questions about themselves. Americans are usually eager to explain all about their country or anything"American"in which you may be interested. So much so in fact that you may become tired of listening. It doesn't matter because Americans tend to be uncomfortable with silence during a conversation. They would rather talk about the weather or the latest sports scores，for example，than deal with silence.

On the other hand，don't expect Americans to be knowledgeable about international geography or world affairs，unless those subjects directly involve the United States. Because the United States is not surrounded by many other nations，some Americans tend to ignore the rest of the world.

46. The general topic of the passage is .

A. American culture　　B. American society
C. Americans' activities　　D. Americans' personality

47. Which of the following statements is NOT TRUE according to the passage?
A. Americans do not like to depend on other people.
B. Friendships among Americans tend to be casual.
C. Americans know a lot about international affairs.
D. Americans always seem to be on the go.

48. The phrase "highly charged" (Paragraph 2) most probably means .
A. extremely free　　B. highly responsible
C. very cheerful　　D. full of mobility and change

49. It can be inferred from the passage that .
A. Americans want to participate in all kinds of activities
B. Americans' character is affected by their social and geographical environments
C. Americans do not know how to deal with silence
D. Curiosity is characteristic of Americans

50. According to the passage, Americans tend to ignore the rest of the world because .
A. they are not interested in other countries
B. they are too proud of themselves
C. their country does not have many neighboring nations
D. they are too busy to learn about other countries

Passage Two

Want a glimpse of the future of health care? Take a look at the way the various networks of people involved in patient care are being connected to one another, and how this new connectivity is being exploited to deliver medicine to the patient-no matter where he or she may be.

Online doctors offering advice based on standardized symptoms are the most obvious example. Increasingly, however, remote diagnosis (telemedicine) will be based on real physiological data from the actual patient. A group from the University of Kentucky has shown that by using an off-the-shelf(现成的) PDA (personal data assistance) such as a Palm Pilot plus a mobile phone, it is perfectly feasible to transmit a patient's vital signs over the telephone. With this kind of equipment in a first-aid kit(急救包), the cry asking whether there was a doctor in the house could well be a thing of the past.

Other medical technology groups are working on applying telemedicine to rural care. And at least one team wants to use telemedicine as a tool for disaster response—especially after earthquakes. Overall, the trend is towards providing global access to medical data and expertise.

But there is one problem. Bandwidth is the limiting factor for transmitting complex medical images around the world—CT scans being one of the biggest bandwidth consumers. Communications satellites may be able to cope with the short-term needs during disasters such as earthquakes, wars or famines. But medicine is looking towards both the second-generation Internet and third-generation mobile phones for the future of distributed medical intelligence.

Doctors have met to discuss computer-based tools for medical diagnosis, training and telemedicine. With the falling price of broadband communications, the new technologies should usher in(迎来) an era when telemedicine and the sharing of medical information, expert opinion and diagnosis are common.

51. The basis of remote diagnosis will be .
A. standardized symptoms of a patient　　B. personal data assistance

C. transmitted complex medical images D. real physiological data from a patient

52. The sentence"the cry asking whether there was a doctor in the house could well be a thing of the past"means .

A. now people probably would not ask if there is a doctor in the house

B. patients used to cry and ask if there was a doctor in the house

C. in the past people often cried and asked if there was a doctor in the house

D. patients are now still asking if there is a doctor in the house

53. All the following statements are true EXCEPT that .

A. it is now feasible to transmit a patient's vital signs over telephone

B. flood is not among the disasters mentioned in the passage

C. the trend in applying telemedicine is toward providing global access to medical data

D. telemedicine is being used by many medical teams as a tool for disaster response

54. The word"problem"in the fourth paragraph refers to the fact that .

A. there are not enough mobile phones for distributing medical intelligence

B. CT scans are one of the biggest bandwidth consumers

C. bandwidth is not adequate to transmit complex medical images around the world

D. communications satellites can only cope with the short-term needs during disasters

55. A proper title for the passage may be .

A. Improvement in Communications B. The Online Doctor Is In

C. Application of Telemedicine D. How to Make Remote Diagnosis

Passage Three

Pictures in the British papers this week of Prince William, Prince Charles's 18-year-old son, cleaning toilets overseas, have led to a surge of altruism（利他主义）. Raleigh Internation-al, the charity that organized his trip, has seen inquiries about voluntary work abroad rise by 30%. But the image of idealistic youth that William presents no longer reflects the reality of the volunteer force. It's getting older and older.

Voluntary Service Overseas（VSO）has about 2000 volunteers in the field around the world. After a dip in interest in the mid-1990s, applications to work abroad are at record levels. Last year 7645 people submitted applications, and 920 successfully negotiated the VSO selection process and were sent abroad. When the organization was founded in 1959, the average volunteer was in his early 20s. Now, the average age is 35, and set to rise further.

Partly, that is because there are more older people who want to do VSO. More people take early retirement; more, says the chief executive of VSO, "still feel that they have more to give and are in good health". And the demands of the African and Asian countries where most of the volunteers go are changing, too. Their educational standards have risen over the past couple of decades, so they want people with more qualifications, skills and experience.

BESO（British Executive Service Overseas）recruits executives and businessmen with at least 15 years' experience for short-term contract work overseas. It organizes 500 placements（工作安置）a year, and at the moment supply is surpassing demand. A BESO spokesman said that the organization is"limited by funding rather than a lack of volunteers".

Enthusiastic but unqualified students do not impress as much as they once did alongside accountants, managers and doctors. The typical volunteer, these days, has been in full-time employment for at least five years and is highly qualified. And the profession which provides the biggest portion of volunteers is education—headmasters and school inspectors as well as classroom teachers.

56. According to the passage，the volunteers .
A. are getting older and older B. are becoming fewer
C. are inexperienced and unqualified D. are mostly students
57. All the statements are true about Prince William EXCEPT that .
A. his trip has triggered a surge of altruism
B. his trip was organized by a government institution
C. he presents the image of idealistic youth
D. he is not a representative volunteer in age
58. From the second paragraph we can know that .
A. the number of applications to work abroad declined in the mid-1990s
B. the average volunteer now is not much older than forty years ago
C. of those who have submitted applications a majority have been chosen and sent abroad
D. there were more applications to work aboard in the early 1990s than in the late 1990s
59. There are more older people who want to do VSO because .
Ⅰ. more people take early retirement
Ⅱ. more older people feel they are in good health
Ⅲ. the foreign countries where the volunteers go want people with more qualifications，skills and experience
A. Ⅱ only B. Ⅰ only C. Ⅰ，Ⅱ and Ⅲ D. Ⅰ and Ⅱ
60. According to the last paragraph，the typical volunteer now may be .
A. an enthusiastic but unqualified young student
B. a highly qualified headmaster or teacher
C. an executive or businessman with at least 15 years' experience
D. a well-experienced accountant，manager，or doctor

Passage Four

With only about 1000 pandas left in the world，China is desperately trying to clone the animal and save the endangered species. That's a move similar to what a Texas A&M University researcher has been undertaking for the past five years in a project called "Noah's Ark".

Dr. Duane Kraemer，a professor in Texas A&M's College of Veterinary Medicine and a pioneer in embryo（胚胎）transfer work and related procedures，says he salutes the Chinese effort and "I wish them all the best success possible. It's a worthwhile project，certainly not an easy one，and it's very much like what we're attempting here at Texas A&M—to save animals from extinction".

Noah's Ark is aimed at collecting eggs，embryos，semens（精子）and DNA of endangered animals and storing them in liquid nitrogen. If certain species should become extinct，Kraemer says there would be enough of the basic building blocks to reintroduce the species in the future.

It is estimated that as many as 2000 species of mammals，birds and reptiles will become extinct over the next 100 years. The panda，native only to China，is in danger of becoming extinct in the next 25 years.

This week，Chinese scientists said they grew an embryo by introducing cells from a dead female panda into the egg cells of a Japanese white rabbit. They are now trying to implant the embryo into a host animal.

The entire procedure could take from three to five years to complete.

“The nuclear transfer of one species to another is not easy，and the lack of available panda eggs could be a major problem.”Kraemer believes.“They will probably have to do several hundred transfers to result in one pregnancy. It takes a long time and it’s difficult，but this could be groundbreaking science if it works. They are certainly not putting any live pandas at risk，so it is worth the effort.”adds Kraemer，who is one of the leaders of the Missyplicity Project at Texas A&M，the first-ever attempt at cloning a dog.

“They are trying to do something that’s never been done，and this is very similar to our work in Noah’s Ark. We’re both trying to save animals that face extinction. I certainly applaud their effort and there’s a lot we can learn from what they are attempting to do. It’s a research that is very much needed.”

61. The aim of“Noah’s Ark”Project is to .

A. salute the Chinese efforts in saving pandas

B. implant embryo into a host animal

C. introduce cells from a dead female panda into the egg cells of a Japanese white rabbit

D. save endangered animals from extinction

62. How long will the Chinese panda-cloning project take according to the passage?

A. 3 to 5 years. B. 1 year. C. 25 years. D. 2 years.

63. The word“groundbreaking”（Paragraph 7）can be interpreted as .

A. pioneering B. essentially new C. epoch-making D. evolutionary

64. What could be the major problem in cloning pandas according to Professor Kraemer?

A. Lack of host animals. B. Lack of available panda eggs.

C. Lack of funds. D. Lack of qualified researchers.

65. The best title for the passage may be .

A. China’s Efforts to Clone Pandas

B. China-the Native Place of Pandas Forever

C. Exploring the Possibility to Clone Pandas

D. China’s First Cloned Panda

Passage Five

If there is one thing scientists have to hear，it is that the game is over. Raised on the belief of an endless voyage of discovery，they recoil（畏缩）from the suggestion that most of the best things have already been located. If they have，today’s scientists can hope to contribute no more than a few grace notes to the symphony of science.

A book to be published in Britain this week，The End of Science，argues persuasively that this is the case. Its author，John Horgan，is a senior writer for Scientific American magazine，who has interviewed many of today’s leading scientists and science philosophers. The shock of realizing that science might be over came to him，he says，when he was talking to Oxford mathematician and physicist Sir Roger Penrose.

The End of Science provoked a wave of denunciation（谴责）in the United States last year.“The reaction has been one of complete shock and disbelief.”Mr. Horgan says.

The real question is whether any remaining unsolved problems，of which there are plenty，lend themselves to universal solutions. If they do not，then the focus of scientific discovery is already narrowing. Since the triumphs of the 1960s—the genetic code，plate tectonics（板块构造说），and the microwave background radiation that went a long way towards proving the Big Bang—genuine scientific revolutions have been scarce. More scientists are now alive，spending more money on research，that ever. Yet most of the great discoveries of the 19th and 20th centuries were made before the appearance of state sponsorship，when the scientific enterprise was a fraction of its present size.

Were the scientists who made these discoveries brighter than today's? That seems unlikely. A far more reasonable explanation is that fundamental science has already entered a period of diminished returns. "Look，don't get me wrong，" says Mr. Horgan. "There are lots of important things still to study，and applied science and engineering can go on for ever. I hope we get a cure for cancer，and for mental disease，though there are few real signs of progress."

66. The sentence"most of the best things have already been located"could mean .

A. most of the best things have already been changed

B. most of the best things remain to be changed

C. there have never been so many best things waiting to be discovered

D. most secrets of the world have already been discovered

67. John Horgan .

Ⅰ. has published a book entitled The End of Science

Ⅱ. has been working as an editor of Scientific American

Ⅲ. has been working many years as a literary critic

Ⅳ. is working as a science writer

A. Ⅰ and Ⅱ B. Ⅰ only C. Ⅰ and Ⅳ D. Ⅰ，Ⅱ and Ⅳ

68. There have not been many genuine scientific revolutions in the past few decades because .

A. there have been decreased returns in the research of fundamental science

B. there are too many important things for scientists to study

C. applied science and engineering take up too much time and energy

D. today's scientists are not as intelligent as those in the past

69. The term"the Big Bang"probably refers to .

A. the genetic code theory

B. a geological theory

C. a theory of the origin of the universe

D. the origin and the power of atomic energy

70. The best title of this passage can be .

A. Great Scientific Discoveries Will Never Be Possible

B. The Harsh Challenge Has to Be Met by Modern Scientists

C. The State Sponsorship and Scientific Enterprise Are All in Vain

D. The Chance for Great Scientific Discoveries Becomes Scarce

Part Ⅳ Cloze（15 minutes，10 points）

Directions：In this part，there is a passage with twenty blanks. For each blank there are four choices marked A，B，C and D. Choose the best answer for each blank and mark the corresponding letter on your ANSWER SHEET with a single line through the center.

There is virtually no limit to how one can serve community interests，from spending a few hours a week with some charitable organization to practically fulltime work for a social agency. Just as there are opportunities for voluntary service ___71___（VSO） for young people before they take up full-time employment，___72___ there are opportunities for overseas service for ___73___ technicians in developing countries. Some people，___74___ those who retire early，___75___ their technical and business skills in countries ___76___ there is a special need.

So in considering voluntary or __77__ community service there are more opportunities than there __78__ were when one first began work. Most voluntary organizations have only a small fulltime __79__ , and depend very much on volunteers and part-timers. This means that working relationships are different from those in commercial organizations, and values may be different.

__80__ some ways they may seem more casual and less efficient, but one should not __81__ them by commercial criteria. The people who work with them do so for different reasons and with different __82__ , both personal and __83__ . One should not join them __84__ to arm them with professional expertise; they must be joined with commitment to the __85__ , not business efficiency. Because salaries are __86__ or non-existent many voluntary bodies offer modest expenses. But many retired people take part in community service for __87__ , simply because they enjoy the work.

Many community activities possible __88__ retirement were also possible during one's working life but they are to be undertaken __89__ seriously for that. Retired people who are just looking for something different or unusual to do should not consider __90__ community service.

Part Ⅲ Reading Comprehension（40 minutes，25 points）

Directions： There are five passages in this part. Each passage is followed by five questions or unfinished statements. For each of them there are four choices marked A，B，C and D. Choose the best one and mark the corresponding letter on the ANSWER SHEET with a single line through the center.

Passage One

John Grisham was born on February 2，1955，in Jonesboro，Arkansas，in the USA. His father was a construction worker and moved his family all around the southern states of America， stopping wherever he could find work. Eventually they settled in Mississippi. Graduating from law school in 1981，Grisham practiced law for nearly a decade in Southaven，specializing in criminal defense and personal injury litigation（诉讼）. In 1983，he was elected to the state House of Representatives and served until 1990.

One day at the Dessoto County courthouse， Grisham heard the horrifying testimony of a 12-year-old rape victim. He decided to write a novel exploring what would have happened if the girl's father had murdered her attackers. He proceeded to get up every morning at 5 a.m. to work on the novel，called A Time to Kill，which was published in 1988. Grisham's next novel，The Firm，was one of the biggest hits of 1991，spending 47 weeks on The New York Times bestseller list. Grisham lives with his wife and two children， dividing their time between their Victorian home on a 67 acre farm in Mississippi and a 204 acre plantation near Charlottesville，Virginia.

When he's not writing，Grisham devotes time to charitable causes，including mission trips with his church group. As a child he dreamt of becoming a professional baseball player，and now serves as the local Little League commissioner. He has built six ballfields on his property and hosts children from 26 Little League teams.

46. John Grisham is at present.
A. a writer B. a lawyer
C. a professional baseball player D. a congressman
47. What inspired Grisham to write his first novel?
A. A case of murder. B. A case of rape.
C. His father's experience. D. His life on the farm.
48. The story of the novel A Time to Kill would probably focus on .
A. how the girl was attacked B. the circumstances of the rape
C. how the girl's father took revenge D. how the case of rape was settled
49. Which of the following is NOT true of the novel The Firm?
A. It was popular at the time of publication.
B. It earned Grisham great fame.
C. It brought Grisham wealth.
D. It was carried by The New York Times as a series.
50. It can be inferred from the passage that Grisham has built ballfields on his property .
A. to achieve his life's goal as a professional baseball player
B. to coach children in baseball
C. to see his childhood dream being realized in the children
D. to provide facilities of baseball training

Passage Two

A quality education is the ultimate liberator. It can free people from poverty, giving them the power to greatly improve their lives and take a productive place in society. It can also free communities and countries, allowing them to leap forward into periods of wealth and social unity that otherwise would not be possible.

For this reason, the international community has committed itself to getting all the world's children into primary school by 2015, a commitment known as Education for All.

Can education for all be achieved by 2015? The answer is definitely "yes", although it is a difficult task. If we know measure the goal in terms of children successfully completing a minimum of five years of primary school, instead of just enrolling for classes, which used to be the measuring stick for education, then the challenge becomes even more difficult. Only 32 countries were formerly believed to be at risk of not achieving education for all on the basis of enrollment rates. The number rises to 88 if completion rates are used as the criterion.

Still, the goal is achievable with the right policies and the right support from the international community. 59 of the 88 countries at risk can reach universal primary completion by 2015 if they bring the efficiency and quality of their education systems into line with standards observed in higher-performing systems. They also need significant increases in external financing and technical support. The 29 countries lagging farthest behind will not reach the goal without unprecedented rates of progress. But this is attainable with creative solution, including use of information technologies, flexible and targeted foreign aid, and fewer people living in poverty.

A key lesson of experience about what makes development effective is that a country's capacity to use aid well depends heavily on its policies, institutions and management. Where a country scores well on these criteria, foreign assistance can be highly effective.

51. In the first paragraph, the author suggests that a quality education can .
A. free countries from foreign rules

B. speed up social progress
C. give people freedom
D. liberate people from any exploitation

52. Ideally, the goal of the program of Education for All is to by 2015.
A. get all the world's children to complete primary school
B. enroll all the world's children into primary school
C. give quality education to people of 88 countries
D. support those committed to transforming their education systems

53. countries are now at risk of not achieving education for all on the basis of completion rates.
A. 32 B. 59 C. 29 D. 88

54. According to the passage, which of the following is NOT mentioned as the right policy?
A. Raising the efficiency of education systems.
B. Improving the quality of education.
C. Using information technologies.
D. Building more primary school.

55. As can be gathered from the last paragraph, foreign aid .
A. may not be highly effective
B. is provided only when some criteria are met
C. alone makes development possible
D. is most effective for those countries lagging farthest behind

Passage Three

Most people think of lions as strictly African beasts, but only because they've been killed off almost everywhere else. Ten thousand years ago lions spanned vast sections of the globe. Now lions hold only a small fraction of their former habitat, and Asiatic lions, a subspecies that spit from African lions perhaps 100000 years ago, hang on to an almost impossibly small slice of their former territory.

India is the proud steward of these 300 or so lions, which live primarily in a 560-square-mile sanctuary (保护区). It took me a year and a half to get a permit to explore the entire Gir Forest—and no time at all to see why these lions became symbols of royalty and greatness. A tiger will hide in the forest unseen, but a lion stands its ground, curious and unafraid—lionhearted. Though they told me in subtle ways when I got too close, Gir's lions allowed me unique glimpses into their lives during my three months in the forest. It's odd to think that they are threatened by extinction; Gir has as many lions as it can hold—too many, in fact. With territory in short supply, lions move about near the boundary of the forest and even leave it altogether, often clashing with people. That's one reason India is creating a second sanctuary. There are other pressing reasons: outbreaks of disease or natural disasters. In 1994 a serious disease killed more than a third of Africa's Serengeti lions—a thousand animals—a fate that could easily happen to Gir's cats. These lions are especially vulnerable to disease because they descend from as few as a dozen individuals. "If you do a DNA test, Asiatic lions actually look like identical twins." says Stephen O'Brien, a geneticist (基因学家) who has studied them. Yet the dangers are hidden, and you wouldn't suspect them by watching these lords of the forest. The lions display vitality, and no small measure of charm.

Though the gentle intimacy of play vanishes when it's time to eat, meals in Gir are not necessarily frantic affairs. For a mother and her baby lion sharing a deer, or a young male eating an antelope （羚羊），there’s no need to fight for a cut of the kill. The animals they hunt for food are generally smaller in Gir than those in Africa， and hunting groups tend to be smaller as well.

56. In the first paragraph， the author tells us that Asiatic lions .

A. have killed off other lions

B. have descended from African lions

C. used to span vast sections of the globe

D. have lost their habitat

57. What impressed the author most when he went to watch the lions in the Gir Forest?

A. Their friendliness. B. Their size.

C. Their intimacy. D. Their vitality.

58. What does the sentence“...meals in Gir are not necessarily frantic affair”mean?

A. The lions do not show intimacy among them any more.

B. The lions may not deed to fight for food.

C. Food is not readily available in that region.

D. Meals can be obtained only with great effort.

59. The lions in the Gir Forest are especially vulnerable to disease because .

A. they have descended from a dozen or so ancestors

B. they are smaller than the African lions

C. they do not have enough to eat

D. they are physically weaker than the African lions

60. One of the reasons why India is creating a secondary sanctuary for the Asiatic lions is that .

A. the present sanctuary is not large enough

B. scientists want to do more research on them

C. they have killed many people

D. the forest is shrinking in size

Passage Four

After retirement from medical，my wife and I built our home in a gated community surrounded by yacht clubs and golf courses on Hilton Head Island. But when I left for the other side of the island， I was traveling on unpaved roads lined with leaky cottages. The“lifestyle”of many of the native islanders stood in shocking contrast to my comfortable existence.

By talking to the local folks，I discovered that the vast majority of the maids，gardeners，waitresses and construction workers who make this island work had little or no access to medical care. It seemed outrageous to me. I wondered why someone didn’t do something about that. Then my father’s words， which he had asked his children daily when they were young， rang in my head again：“What did you do for someone today？”

Even though my father had died several years before，I guess I still didn’t want to disappoint him. So I started working on a solution. The island was full of retired doctors. If I could persuade them to spend a few hours a week volunteering their services，we could provide free primary health care to those so desperately in need of it. Most of the doctors I approached liked the idea， so long as they could be relicensed without troubles. It took one year and plenty of persistence，but I was able to persuade the state legislators to create a special license for doctors volunteering in not-for-profit clinics.

The town donated land， local residents contributed office and medical equipment and some of the potential patients volunteered their weekends ornamenting the building that would become the clinic. We named it volunteers in Medicine and we opened its doors in 1994， fully staffed by retired physicians，nurses and dentists as well as nearly 150 nonprofessional volunteers. That year we had 5000 patient visits；last year we had 16000.

Somehow word of what we were doing got around. Soon we were receiving phone calls from retired physicians all over the country，asking for help in starting VIM clinics in their communities. We did the best we could—there are now 15 other clinics operating—but we couldn’t keep up with the need. Yet last month I think my father’s words found their way up north， to McNeil Consumer Healthcare，the maker of Tylenol（泰诺：一种感冒药）. A major grant from McNeil will allow us to respond to these requests and help establish other free clinics in communities around the country.

61. What is the passage mainly about?

A. The contrast between the rich and the poor on an island.

B. The story of a man who likes to give others advice.

C. The life and work of a great father.

D. The inspiration of a father’s words.

62. The author of the passage is .

A. a retired physician　　B. a retired teacher

C. a retired medical researcher　　D. a retired construction worker

63. The purpose of Volunteers in Medicine is to .

A. help retired medical workers improve their incomes

B. provide free medical services to those who need them

C. urge the government to set up non-profit clinics

D. make the dream of the author’s father come true

64. Which of the following has been done by the author himself?

A. Buying the medical equipment.

B. Finding the land and the office.

C. Decorating the building that would become the clinic.

D. Getting a special license for the retired doctors.

65. In the last paragraph，“I think my father’s words found their way up north to McNeil”implies that .

A. my father’s words finally reached McNeil

B. McNeil decided to do something for the needy people

C. My father decided to assist us in opening more clinics in the north

D. McNeil community was badly in need of free health care programs

Passage Five

Even before Historian Joseph Ellis became a best-selling author， he was famous for his vivid lectures. In his popular courses at Mount Holyoke College in Massachusetts，he would often make classroom discussion lively by describing his own combat experience in Vietnam. But as Ellis’s reputation grew-his books on the Founding Fathers have won both the prestigious National Book Award and the Pulitzer Prize—the history professor began to entertain local and national reporters with his memories of war. Last year， after The Boston Globe carried accounts of Ellis’s experience in the Vietnam war，someone who knew the truth about Ellis dropped a dime（揭发）. Last week The Boston Globe revealed that Ellis，famous for explaining the nation’s history，had some explaining to do about his own past.

“Even in the best of lives，mistakes are made.”said a wretched Ellis . It turned out that while the distinguished historian had served in the Army， he’d spent his war years not in the jungles of Southeast Asia，but teaching history at West Point（西点军校）. He’d also overstated his role in the antiwar movement and even his high-school athletic records. His admission shocked colleagues， fellow historians and students who wondered why someone so accomplished would beautify his past. But it seems that success and truthfulness don’t always go hand in hand. Even among the distinguished achievers， security experts say， one in ten is deceiving-indulging in everything from empty boasting to more serious offenses such as plagiarism（剽窃），fictionalizing military records，making up false academic certificates or worse. And，oddly，prominent people who beautify the past often do so once they’re famous，says Ernest Brod of Kroll Associates，which has conducted thousands of background checks. Says Brod:“It’s not like they use these lies to climb the ladder.”

Then what makes them do it？Psychologists say some people succeed，at least in part，because they are uniquely adjusted to the expectations of others. And no matter how well-known，those people can be haunted by a sense of their own shortcomings.“From outside，these people look anything but fragile，”says Dennis Shulman，a New York psychoanalyst.“But inside，they feel hollow，empty.”

66. Which of the following is true about Ellis？

A. He is a famous professor of history at West Point.

B. His book on the Vietnam war has won two important prizes.

C. He has told both students and reporters about his own experience of war.

D. He has written a best-seller for a newspaper—The Boston Globe.

67. While Ellis served in the Army，he .

A. combated in Vietnam

B. taught at a military school

C. exaggerated his part as a historian

D. made mistakes in the antiwar movement

68. What did Ellis lie about？

A. His war experience in Vietnam.

B. His athletic records in high school.

C. His role in the antiwar movement.

D. All of the above.

69. What does“to climb the ladder”in the second paragraph mean？

A. To become more successful.

B. To inquire into one’s background.

C. To cover one’s serious offenses.

D. To go further in beautifying one’s past.

70. According to psychologists，successful people who lie about themselves .

A. take pride in their weaknesses　　B. feel weak in their hearts

C. think nothing of others　　D. look weak to others

Directions： There are five passages in this part. Each passage is followed by five questions or unfinished statements. For each of hem there are four choices marked A，B，C and D. Choose the best answer and mark the corresponding letter on the ANSWER SHEET with a single line through the center.

Passage One

Andrea had never seen an old lady hitchhiking（搭车）before. However， the weather and the coming darkness made her feel sorry for the lady. The old lady had some difficulty climbing in through the car door， and pushed her big brown canvas shopping bag down onto the floor under her feet. She said to Andrea，in a voice that was almost a whisper，“Thank you，dearie-I’m just going to Brockbourne”.

Something in the way the lady spoke，and the way she never turned her head，made Andrea uneasy about this strange hitchhiker. She didn’t know why， but she felt instinctively that there was something ... wrong， something odd， something ... dangerous. But how could an old lady be dangerous？It was absurd.

Careful not to turn her head， Andrea looked sideways at her passenger. She studied the hat， the dirty collar of the dress， the shapeless body， the arms with their thick black hairs...

Thick black hairs？

Hairy arms？Andrea’s blood froze.

This wasn’t a woman. It was a man.

At first，she didn’t know what to do. Then suddenly，an idea came into her racing，terrified brain. Swinging the wheel suddenly， she threw the car into a skid（刹车）， and brought it to a halt.

“My God！”she shouted， “A child！Did you see the child？I think I hit her！”

The“old lady”was clearly shaken by the sudden skid， “I didn’t see anything，dearie，”she said.“I don’t think you hit anything.”

“I’m sure it was a child！‘insisted Andrea.’Could you just get out and have a look？Just see if there’s anything on the road？”She held her breath. Would her plan work？

It did. The passenger slowly climbed out to investigate. As soon as she was out of the vehicle， Andrea gunned the engine and accelerated madly away， and soon she had put a good three miles between herself and the awful hitchhiker.

It was only then that she thought about the bag lying on the floor in front of her. Maybe the bag would provide some information about the real identity about the man. Pulling into the side of the road， Andrea opened the heavy bag curiously.

It contained only one item——a small hand axe， with a razor-sharp blade. The axe and the inside of the bag were covered with the dark red stains of dried blood.

Andrea began to scream.

46. Andrea allowed the hitchhiker to take a ride in her car mainly because .

A. the hitchhiker was an old woman B. she was curious about the old lady

C. the lady had a heavy bag D. she knew the old lady

47. What made Andrea afraid when she looked at the old lady？

A. She had a shapeless body. B. She had a harsh voice.

C. She wore a dirty dress. D. She had hairy arms.

48. Andrea suddenly stopped the car because .

A. she thought she had hit a child on the road

B. she skidded on some ice on the road
C. she wanted to trick the passenger into getting out
D. she couldn't concentrate and nearly had a crash

49. Andrea looked in the passenger's bag to .
A. examine what was in it
B. find out where the passenger lived
C. use the passenger's tools
D. find out who the passenger was

50. Andrea screamed because .
A. she saw the hitchhiker come back
B. she realized she could have been killed
C. she was scared at seeing blood
D. she cut herself by the blade

Passage Two

Desperately short of living space and dangerously prone to flooding，the Netherlands plans to start building homes，businesses and even roads on water.

With nearly a third of the country already covered by water and half of its land mass below sea level and constantly under threat from rising waters， the authorities believe that floating communities may well be the future.

Six prototype wooden and aluminum floating houses are already attached to something off Amsterdam，and at least a further 100 are planned on the same estate，called Ijburg.

"Everybody asks why didn't we do this kind of thing before，" said Gijsbert Van der Woerdt，director of the firm responsible for promoting the concept. "After Bangladesh we're the most densely populated country in the world. Building space is scarce and government studies show that we'll need to double the space available to us in the coming years to meet all our needs."

Before being placed on the water and moved into position by tugboats（拖船），the houses are built on land atop concrete flat-bottomed boats，which encase giant lumps of polystyrene （聚苯乙烯） reinforced with steel. The flat-bottomed boats are said to be unsinkable and are anchored by underwater cables. The floating roads apply the same technology.

The concept is proving popular with the Dutch. The waiting list for such homes，which will cost between euros 200000～500000 to buy，runs to 5000 names，claims Van der Woerdt.

With much of the country given over to market gardening and the intensive cultivation of flowers，planners have also come up with designs for floating greenhouses so that the water beneath them irrigates the plants and controls the temperature inside.

A pilot project，covering 50 hectares of flooded land near Amsterdam's Schiphol airport，is planned for 2005.

The opportunities for innovative developers look promising. "We have 10 projects in the pipeline-floating villages and cities complete with offices，shops and restaurants，"Van der Woerdt said.

51. The Netherlands plans to start building floating communities on water because .
A. most parts of the country are covered by water
B. the country is constantly threatened by floods
C. it will promote the cultivation of flowers
D. people think it better to live on water

52. By citing "Everyone asks why didn't we do this kind of thing before"，the author wants to tell us that .
A. building floating communities is a very good idea

B. the director of the firm didn't want to answer the question
C. the Netherlands should follow the example of Bangladesh
D. people are not satisfied with the government's work

53. The floating houses will be .

A. reinforced with steel　　B. made of concrete
C. constructed in water　　D. built on boats

54. According to the author, the floating communities on water .

A. can promote market gardening
B. are beyond the reach of most Dutch people
C. will increase the cost of gardening
D. will be very popular by the year of 2005

55. "10 projects in the pipeline"in the last paragraph means .

A."10 pipelines to provide gas"
B."10 companies to lay the pipelines"
C."10 floating houses to be built on water"
D."10 building projects planned and started"

Passage Three

My new home was a long way from the centre of London but it was becoming essential to find a job, so finally I spent a whole morning getting to town and putting my name down to be considered by London Transport for a job on the tube. They were looking for guards, not drivers. This suited me. I couldn't drive a car but thought that I could probably guard a train, and perhaps continue to write my poems between stations. The writers Keats and Chekhov had been doctors. T. S. Eliot had worked in a bank and Wallace Stevens for an insurance company. I would be a tube guard. I could see myself being cheerful, useful, a good man in a crisis. Obviously I would be overqualified but I was willing to forget about that in return for a steady income and travel privileges—those being particularly welcome to someone living a long way from the city centre.

The next day I sat down, with almost a hundred other candidates, for the intelligence test, I must have done all right because after half an hour's wait I was sent into another room for a psychological test. This time there were only about fifty candidates. The examiner sat at a desk. You were signaled forward to occupy the seat opposite him when the previous occupant had been dismissed after a greater or shorter time. Obviously the long interviews were the more successful ones. Some of the interviews were as short as five minutes. Mine was the only one that lasted a minute and a half.

I can remember the questions now: "Why did you leave your last job?" "Why did you leave your job before that?" "And the one before that?" I can't recall my answers, except that they were short at first and grew progressively shorter. His closing statement, I thought, revealed a lack of sensitivity which helped to explain why as a psychologist, he had risen no higher than the underground railway. "You have failed the psychological test and we are unable to offer you a position."

Failing to get that job was my low point. Or so I thought, believing that the work was easy. Actually, such jobs—being a postman is another one I still desire—demand exactly the sort of elementary yet responsible awareness that the habitual dreamer is least qualified to give. But I was still far short of full self-understanding. I was also short of cash.

56. The writer applied for the job because .

A. he could no longer afford to live without one

B. he wanted to work in the centre of London
C. he had received suitable training
D. he was not interested in any other available job

57. The writer thought he was overqualified for the job because .
A. he had written many poems
B. he often traveled underground
C. he had worked in an insurance company
D. he could deal with difficult situations

58. The length of his interview meant that .
A. he had not done well in the intelligence test
B. he was not going to be offered the job
C. he had little work experience to talk about
D. he did not like the examiner

59. What was the writer's opinion of the psychologist?
A. He was inefficient at his job.
B. He was unsympathetic.
C. He was unhappy with his job.
D. He was very aggressive.

60. What does the writer realize now that he did not realize then?
A. How difficult it can be to get a job.
B. How unpleasant ordinary jobs can be.
C. How badly he did in the interview.
D. How unsuitable he was for the job.

Passage Four

For more than 10 years there has been a bigger rise in car crime than in most other types of crime. An average of more than two cars a minute are broken into, vandalized(破坏)or stolen in the UK. Car crime accounts for almost a third of all reported offences with no signs that the trend is slowing down.

Although there are highly professional criminals involved in car theft, almost 90 percent of car crime is committed by the opportunist. Amateur thieves are aided by our carelessness. When the Automobile Association (AA) engineers surveyed one town centre car park last year, 10 percent of cars checked were unlocked, a figure backed up by a Home Office national survey that found 12 percent of drivers sometimes left their cars unlocked.

The vehicles are sitting in petrol stations while drivers pay for their fuel. The AA has discovered that cars are left unattended for an average of three minutes—and sometimes much longer—as drivers buy drinks, cigarettes and other consumer items and then pay at the counter. With payment by credit card more and more common, it is not unusual for a driver to be out of his car as long as six minutes providing the car thief with a golden opportunity.

In an exclusive AA survey, carried out at a busy garage on a main road out of London, 300 motorists were questioned over three days of the holiday period. 24 percent admitted that they "always" or "sometimes" leave the keys in the car. This means that nationwide, a million cars daily become easy targets for the opportunist thief.

The AA recommends locking up whenever you leave the car—and for however short a period. A partially open sunroof or window is a further come-on to thieves.

Leaving valuables in view is an invitation to the criminal. A Manchester probationary (假释期) service research project, which interviewed almost 100 car thieves last year, found many would investigate a coat thrown on a seat. Never leave any documents showing your home address in the car. If you have a garage，use it and lock it—a garaged car is at substantially less risk.

There are many other traps to avoid. The Home Office has found little awareness among drivers about safe parking. Most motorists questioned made no efforts to avoid parking in quiet spots away from street lights—just the places thieves love. The AA advises drivers to park in places with people around-thieves do not like audiences.

61. The passage seems to imply that payment by credit card .

A. is preferable for safe parking　　B. is now a common practice

C. takes longer than necessary　　D. aids a car thief in a way

62. Which of the following statements is correct?

A. In the UK，a million cars are stolen daily.

B. In the UK，there are amateur car thieves only.

C. There are more car crimes than any other type of offences.

D. One in ten drivers invites car theft due to carelessness.

63. The researches mentioned in the passage on car theft include all the following EXCEPT .

A. checking private garages　　B. interviewing motorists

C. questioning car thieves　　D. examining parking lots

64. The best way for a driver to avoid car theft is .

A. leaving documents showing one's home address in the car

B. locking one's car in a parking lot at any time

C. not leaving the car unattended for longer than necessary

D. not leaving a sunroof or window partially open

65. In the last paragraph，the term "safe parking" means .

A. not parking under street lights

B. not parking in front of a theatre or cinema

C. avoiding traps set by a possible car thief

D. parking where a lot of people pass by

Passage Five

Nowadays， we hear a lot about the growing threat of globalization， accompanied by those warnings that the rich pattern of local life is being undermined，and many dialects and traditions are becoming extinct. But stop and think for a moment about the many positive aspects that globalization is bringing. Read on and you are bound to feel comforted，ready to face the global future，which is surely inevitable now.

Consider the Internet，that prime example of our shrinking world. Leaving aside the all-to-familiar worries about pornography and political extremism，even the most narrow-minded must admit that the net offers immeasurable benefits， not just in terms of education， the sector for which it was originally designed，but more importantly on a global level，the spread of news and comment. It will be increasingly difficult for politicians to maintain their regimes of misinformation， as the oppressed will not only find support and comfort， but also be able to organize themselves more effectively.

MTV is another global provider that is often criticized for imposing popular culture on the unsuspecting millions around the world. Yet the viewers' judgment on MTV is undoubtedly positive；it is regarded as indispensable by most of the global teenage generation who watch it，a vital part of growing up. And in the final analysis，what harm can a few songs and videos cause?

Is the world dominance of brands like Nike and Coca-Cola so bad for us， when all is said and done？Sportswear and soft drinks are harmless products when compared to the many other things that have been globally available for a longer period of time—heroin and cocaine，for example. In any case，just because Nike shoes and Coke cans are for sale，it doesn’t mean you have to buy them—even globalization cannot deprive the individual of his free will.

Critics of globalization can stop issuing their doom and gloom statements. Life goes on，and has more to offer for many citizens of the world than it did for their parents’ generation.

66. Some people feel sad about globalization because they believe it will .

A. bring threat to the world peace

B. impact the diversified local life

C. disrupt their present easy life style

D. increase the size of people speaking dialects

67. Internet was originally designed .

A. to promote education　　B. to distribute news and comment

C. to relieve people of worries　　D. to publicize political beliefs

68. What is the writer’s attitude towards globalization？

A. Suspicious.　　B. Positive.　　C. Indifferent.　　D. Contemptuous.

69. It is implied in the passage that Nike and Coca-cola .

A. should not become dominant brands

B. has been ignored by many people

C. cannot be compared with drugs

D. shouldn’t have caused so much concern

70. Which of the following could be the best title of the passage？

A. Globalization Is Standardization.

B. Globalization：Like It or Lump It.

C. Globalization：Don’t Worry，Be Happy.

D. Globalization Brings Equality.

Part Ⅲ Reading Comprehension (45 minutes, 25 points)

Directions： There are five passages in this part. Each passage is followed by five questions or unfinished statements. For each of them there are four choices marked A，B，C and D. Choose the best answer and mark the corresponding letter on the ANSWER SHEET with a single line through the center.

Passage One

Children live in a world in which science has tremendous importance. During their lifetimes it will affect them more and more. In time， many of them will work at jobs that depend heavily on science. As voters， they will have a voice in making many decisions that involve science—for example，concerning energy sources，pollution control，highway safety，wilderness conservation，and population growth. As taxpayers they will pay for scientific research and exploration. And，as consumers，they will be bombarded（受到轰击）by advertising，much of which is said to be based on science.

Therefore，it is important that children，the citizens of the future，become functionally acquainted with science—with the process and spirit of science， as well as with its facts and principles. Fortunately， science has a natural appeal for youngsters. They can relate it to so many things that they encounter—flashlights，tools，echoes，and rainbows.

Besides，science is an excellent medium for teaching far more than content. It can help pupils learn to think logically， to organize and analyse ideas. It can provide practice in communication skills and mathematics. In fact， there is no area of the curriculum to which science cannot contribute，whether it is geography，history，language arts，music or art！

Above all，good science teaching leads to what might be called a“scientific attitude”.Those who possess it seek answers through observing， experimenting， and reasoning， rather than blindly accepting the pronouncements of others. They weigh evidence carefully and reach conclusions with caution. While respecting the opinions of others， they expect honesty， accuracy， and objectivity are on guard against hasty judgments and sweeping generalizations. All children should be developing this approach to solving problems，but it cannot be expected to appear automatically with the mere acquisition of information. Continual practice， through guided participation， is needed.

36. One of the reasons why science is important for children is that many of them will .

A. work in scientific research institutions

B. work at jobs closely related to science

C. make the final decision in matters concerning science

D. be fund-raisers for scientific research and exploration

37. There is no doubt that children like learning science because .

A. science is linked with many of the things they meet

B. science is a very easy subject for them to learn

C. they encounter the facts and principles of science daily

D. they are familiar with the process and spirit of science

38. Pupils can learn logical thinking while .

A. practicing communication skills　　B. studying geography

C. taking art courses　　D. learning science

39. People with a scientific attitude .

A. are ready to accept the pronouncements of others

B. tend to reach conclusions with certainty

C. are aware that others are likely to make hasty judgments

D. seek truth through observation ， experimentation and reasoning

40. In the passage the writer seems to .

A. prove that science is a successful course in school

B. point out that science as a course is now poorly taught in school

C. suggest that science should be included in the school curriculum

D. predict that children who learn science will be good scientists

Passage Two

My surprise over the past few winters has been the personality transformation my parents go through around mid-December as they change from Dad and Mom into Grandpa and Grandma. Yes， they become grandparents and are completely different from the people I know the other eleven and a half months of the year.

The first sign of my parents' change is the delight they take in visiting toy and children's clothing stores. These two people，who usually dislike anything having to do with shopping malls，become crazy consumers. While they tell me to budget my money and shop wisely， they are buying up every doll and dump truck in sight. And this is only the beginning of the holidays!

When my brother's children arrive，Grandpa and Grandma come into full form. First they throw out all ideas about a balanced diet for the grandkids. While we were raised in a house where everyone had to take two bites of corn，beets（甜菜），or liver（foods that appeared quite often on our table despite constant complaining），the grandchildren never have to eat anything that does not appeal to them. Grandma carries chocolate in her pockets to bribe（贿赂）the littlest ones into following her around the house，while Grandpa offers"surprises"of candy and cake to them all day long. Boxes of chocolate-pie disappear while the whole-wheat bread get hard and stale. The kids love all the sweets， and when the sugar raises their energy levels， Grandma and Grandpa can always decide to leave and do a bit more shopping or go to bed while my brother and sister-in-law try to deal with their highly active kids.

Once the grandchildren have arrived， Grandma and Grandpa also seem to forget all of the responsibility lectures I so often hear in my daily life. If Mickey screams at his sister during dinner，he is"developing his own personality"；if Nancy breaks Grandma's mirror，she is"just a curious child."But，if I track mud into the house while helping to unload groceries，I become "careless"；if I scold one of the grandkids for tearing pages out of my textbook，I am"impatient". If Paula talks back to her mother， Grandma and Grandpa smile at her spirit. If I say one word about all of this excessive love， Mom and Dad reappear to have a talk with me about petty jealousies.

41. As regards his parents' shopping for the grandchildren，the author .

A. feels jealous　　B. feels amazed

C. thinks it unnecessary　　D. thinks it annoying

42. What happens after the kids have had all the sweets?

A. They get highly energetic.　　B. They quiet down.

C. They want more sweets.　　D. They go to bed.

43. Which of the following is NOT true of the visiting children?

A. They behave very well.　　B. They like chocolate very much.

C. They receive toys from their grandparents.　　D. They are having a lot of fun.

44. It can be inferred from the passage that when the author was a child，he .

A. liked the foods he had　　B. got a lot of pocket money

C. was spoiled by his parents　　D. was scolded if he misbehaved

45. “Personality transformation”in the author’s parents means that they .
A. have turned into loving parents
B. have become strict parents
C. no longer care for the author
D. used to believe in discipline for children

Passage Three

Diego Chiapello，legally blind since birth，isn’t one of Italy’s famous“mama’s boys”who live with their parents into adulthood. The 27-year-old lives alone in Milan， works as a network administrator，loves diving and dreams of sailing across the Atlantic with a sight-impaired（有视力障碍的）crew.

Obviously，he’s not your average disabled person—but especially so in Italy. The country has more barriers to integration than almost anywhere else on the Continent： among European countries，Italy ranks third from the bottom in accessibility for the disabled，ahead of only Greece and Portugal，People who use wheelchairs，especially，find it difficult to navigate the country’s cobblestone（鹅卵石）streets，ride buses or visit restaurants，shops and museums. Less than a quarter of Italy’s disabled hold jobs，compared with 47 percent for Europe.

But the biggest obstacle for the country’s physically challenged may，in fact，be the fabled Italian family. Because of the social defect that still attaches to disabilities，“they tend to keep disabled people at home”and out of public view，explains Giovanni Marri，head of an employment training center in Milan that caters to the handicapped. Thus while 15 percent of the country’s families include a disabled person，according to surveys，only 2 percent of Italians report going to school with a disabled person and only 4 percent work with one.

Italians are beginning to recognize the problem. Over the past decade，the government has passed laws targeting everything from workplace discrimination to accessibility requirements. A recent study by the European Union found that 85 percent of Italians admit that public transportation and infrastructure（基础设施）are inadequate for the handicapped，and 97 percent say action is needed. But the biggest barrier is psychological.“Italian companies are afraid of hiring disabled people，”says Chiapello. The only way to alter that，he says，is for Italy’s disabled to do what he did—get out of the house and demand change.

46. Which of the following words best describes“mama’s boys”？
A. Ordinary. B. Optimistic. C. Dependent. D. Desirable.

47. In this passage，Chiapello is cited as an example of .
A. unusual disabled Italians B. courageous blind sailors
C. typical handicapped people D. vulnerable disabled Europeans

48. In Italy，where are the disabled people most likely to be？
A. On the street. B. At home. C. In school. D. At work.

49. Italy’s general public will most probably agree that .
A. physical inadequacies are the biggest obstacle for the disabled
B. things should be done to remove the barriers against the disabled
C. workplace prejudices toward the disabled are hardly recognizable
D. disabled people should reduce the need of going to public places

50. What is the passage mainly about？
A. Italy has not done enough in aiding the disabled.
B. Italy’s disabled people should get out of their houses.
C. Italian people have been blind to troubles of the disabled.

D. Italian ways of aiding the disabled should be encouraged.

Passage Four

The average number of authors on scientific papers is sky-rocketing. That's partly because labs are bigger, problems are more complicated, and more different subspecialties are needed. But it's also because U S government agencies have started to promote "team science". As physics developed in the post-World War Ⅱ era, federal funds built expensive national facilities, and these served as surfaces on which collaborations could crystallize naturally.

Yet multiple authorship—however good it maybe in other ways—presents problems for journals and for the institutions in which these authors work. For the journals, long lists of authors are hard to deal with in themselves. But those long lists give rise to more serious questions when something goes wrong with the paper. If there is research misconduct, how should the liability be allocated among the authors? If there is an honest mistake in one part of the work but not in others, how should an evaluator aim his or her review?

Various practical or impractical suggestions have emerged during the long-standing debate on this issue. One is that each author should provide, and the journal should then publish, an account of that author's particular contribution to the work. But a different view of the problem, and perhaps of the solution, comes as we get to university committee on appointments and promotions, which is where the authorship rubber really meets the road. Half a lifetime of involvement with this process has taught me how much authorship matters. I have watched committees attempting to decode sequences of names, agonize over whether a much-cited paper was really the candidate's work or a coauthor's, and send back recommendations asking for more specificity about the division of responsibility.

Problems of this kind change the argument, supporting the case for asking authors to define their own roles. After all, if quality judgments about individuals are to be made on the basis of their personal contributions, then the judges better know what they did. But if questions arise about the validity of the work as a whole, whether as challenges to its conduct or as evaluations of its influence in the field, a team is a team, and the members should share the credit or the blame.

51. According to the passage, there is a tendency that scientific papers .

A. are getting more complicated

B. are dealing with bigger problems

C. are more of a product of team work

D. are focusing more on natural than on social sciences

52. One of the problems with multiple authorship is that it is hard .

A. to allocate the responsibility if the paper goes wrong

B. to decide on how much contribution each reviewer has made

C. to assign the roles that the different authors are to play

D. to correspond with the authors when the readers feel the need to

53. According to the passage, authorship is important when .

A. practical or impractical suggestions of the authors are considered

B. appointments and promotions of the authors are involved

C. evaluators need to review the publication of the authors

D. the publication of the authors has become much-cited

54. According to the passage, whether multiple authors of a paper should be taken collectively or individually depends on .

A. whether judgments are made about the paper or its authors

B. whether it is the credit or the blame that the authors need to share
C. how many authors are involved in the paper
D. where the paper has been published
55. The best title for the passage can be .
A. Writing Scientific Papers：Publish or Perish
B. Collaboration and Responsibility in Writing Scientific Papers
C. Advantages and Disadvantages of Team Science
D. Multiple Authors，Multiple Problems

Passage Five

What produces a waterproof super glue，acts like a vacuum cleaner，and even teaches scientists about gene repair？The humble little shellfish known as the mussel（贻贝）！

Mussels are found worldwide. Some live in the sea. Others inhabit freshwater streams and lakes. When you try to move a mussel from a rock，you will discover what an incredibly firm grip it has —a necessity if the mussel is to resist the sharp grab of a hungry seabird or the pounding waves of the sea. How does it manage to cling so tight？When it choose a place to set up home，it pokes its tongue-shaped foot out of its shell and presses it against a solid surface. Special glands give off a fluid mixture of proteins into a channel that runs the length of the foot. The liquid quickly hardens into a fine，elastic thread about an inch long. Then a tiny pad-like structure at the end of this thread gives off some natural glue-like substance，the mussel lifts its foot，and anchor line number one is complete. These strategically placed threads form a bundle，which ties the mussel to its new home in much the same way that ropes hold down a tent. The whole procedure takes only three or four minutes.

Imagine having a very strong glue that is non-toxic and so flexible that it can penetrate the tiniest holes and corners，sticking to any surface，even under water. Shipbuilders would welcome it for repairing vessels without the expense of dry-docking them. Auto-body workers would like a really waterproof paint that keeps the rust out. Surgeons would value a safe glue to join broken bones and to close wounds... The list of possible uses appears endless.

However，scientists are not thinking of using the mussels themselves to produce this super glue. It would take some 10000 shellfish to make just one gram of glue. So collection enough mussels to supply the world’s demand for super glue would wipe out the mussel population，many species of which are already endangered. Instead，American researchers have isolated and cloned the genes for five mussel glue proteins， and they are about to mass-produce them in the laboratory. However，the mussel is still one jump ahead. Only the mussel instinctively knows the exact blend of proteins needed for each kind of surface. Molecular biologist Frank Roberto has asked admiringly：“How are you ever going to imitate that？”

56. A mussel grips a hard surface very firmly to .
A. seal itself from being damaged by sea water
B. produce the waterproof super glue
C. protect itself from being blown away by strong wind
D. protect itself from being the food of other animals
57. The waterproof super glue originates in .
A. the mussel’s tongue-shaped foot
B. some glands in the mussel’s body
C. the thread given off by the mussel
D. the channel of the mussel’s foot

58. To tie itself safely to a new home，a mussel must .

A. produce a thread to anchor to the hard surface

B. draw air and water from its pad-like structure

C. hold down a tent as human beings do

D. place many anchor lines strategically

59. Scientists are not thinking of using mussels to produce the super glue mainly because of .

A. the possible mass-production of the super glue

B. their concern about the cost of collecting mussels

C. their concern about the extinction of the species

D. the world's limited demand for the super glue

60. The main idea of this passage is that .

A. mussels can be used to produce super glue

B. mussels are much smarter than we think

C. it is important to protect mussels

D. mussels have an amazing power useful to man

In recent years a new farming revolution has begun，one that involves the __61__ of life at a fundamental level—the gene. The study of genetics has __62__ a new industry called biotechnology. As the name suggest，it __63__ biology and modern technology through such techniques as genetic engineering. Some of the new biotech companies specialize in agriculture and are working feverishly to __64__ seeds that give a high yield，that __65__ diseases，drought and frost，and that reduce the need for __66__ chemicals. If such goals could be achieved，it would be most __67__. But some have raised concerns about genetically engineered crops.

In nature，genetic diversity is created within certain __68__. A rose can be crossed with a different kind of rose，but a rose will never cross with a potato. Genetic engineering，__69__ usually involves taking genes from one species and inserting them into another __70__ to transfer a desired characteristic. This could mean，for example，selecting a gene which leads to the production of a chemical with anti-freeze __71__ from an artic fish，and inserting it into a potato or strawberry to make it frost-resistant. __72__，then，biotechnology allows humans to __73__ the genetic walls that separate species.

Like the green revolution，__74__ some call the gene revolution contributes to the problem of genetic uniformity—some say even more so __75__ geneticists can employ techniques such as cloning and __76__ culture（培养），processes that produce perfectly __77__ copies. Concerns about the erosion of biodiversity，therefore，remain. Genetically altered plants，however，raise new __78__，such as the effects that they may have on us and the environment. "We are flying blindly into a new __79__ of agricultural biotechnology with high hopes，few constraints，and little idea of the potential __80__，" said science writer Jeremy Rifkin.

Part Ⅱ Translation（35 minutes，20 points）

Section A

Directions：Translate the following passage into Chinese. Write your translation on the ANSWER SHEET.

Another kind of distinction that can be made among works of art is whether they were intended as objects to be looked at or to be used. The fine arts, such as painting and sculpture, involve the production of works to be seen and experienced on an abstract level. Pieces of fine art may evoke emotional or spiritual responses in us. Those who love the fine arts feel that these responses are very valuable, for they expand our awareness of the great richness of life itself.

Section B

Directions： Translate the following paragraph into English. Write your translation on the ANSWER SHEET.

在 17 和 18 世纪，中国的艺术、建筑学以及哲学，在西方很受欣赏。此外，中国的丝绸、茶叶和瓷器（porcelain）在西方也备受欢迎，并在一定程度上改变了许多西方人的生活方式。进入 20 世纪后期，西方人再一次转向中国文化。他们除了喜欢中国菜肴外，还学习汉语，尝试中医药，练习中国武术，观看功夫电影。

Part Ⅲ Guided Writing（25 minutes，15 points）

Directions：Read the story in Chinese below, and then write a composition of no less than 150 words under the title of"The Goal of Life". Your composition should be based on the story and the following outline：

Part Ⅲ Reading Comprehension（50 minutes，25 points）

Directions： There are five passages in this part. Each passage is followed by five questions or unfinished statements. For each of them there are four choices marked A，B，C and D. Choose the best one and mark the corresponding letter with a single bar across the square brackets on your machine-scoring ANSWER SHEET.

Passage One

It was Friday，the day of the field trip on which Miss Joan would take her class to pick apples.

Miss Joan enjoyed picking apples with her students. She smiled as she led her students to the bus that would take them to the Greenly Apple Orchard（果园）.

The bus ride was bumpy and the kids were a little noisy，but still Miss Joan was smiling.

The bus stopped in front of the Greenly Orchard Store and the class got off quickly and quietly. Miss Joan made sure everyone was there.“What a glorious，sunny，apple picking day，”Miss Joan announced with her grandest smile.

Mr. Greenly was there to greet them.“Let me see，there are eighteen children and two adults at three dollars each. That will be sixty dollars，please.”

Miss Joan held up the brochure in her hand.“It says that the price is two dollars each，”she pointed out.“That’s what I collected from everyone.”

“We’ve had to raise the price，”Mr. Greenly stated.

“You sent me this brochure after we made our reservation，”Miss Joan complained，“and it says two dollars！”

“Miss Joan，if you look at the bottom of this brochure，”Mr. Greenly said，“you’ll notice a very important statement.”

Sure enough，in very tiny letters，it said，“Prices are subject to change without notice.”

Miss Joan was determined to keep her good mood. She took a twenty dollars bill out of her own purse and handed it to Mr. Greenly with the forty dollars she had in an envelope.

“Now children，do you all have your baskets？”Miss Joan called out.“Remember，you can pick as many apples as six apples each.”

“I beg your pardon！”Miss Joan was not smiling now.“The brochure says，‘ALL YOU CAN PICK’！”

Mr. Greenly pointed to the tiniest letters Miss Joan had ever almost seen. It also says，“Terms and conditions of group reservations are subject to change without notice.”

Miss Joan’s good mood was now history. She didn’t want to set a bad example for her students，so she said in a calm and quiet voice，“We’re going home，give me our money back，please.”

31. How many dollars did Miss Joan hand to Mr. Greenly？

A. 20 B. 40 C. 60 D. 18

32. The phrase“subject to change without notice”suggests

A. Mr. Greenly could change the terms at will.

B. the customers should read the brochure carefully.

C. Mr. Greenly could determine what apples to be picked.

D. the customers should be informed beforehand.

33. The students could not pick as many apples as they would like because

A. they were children. B. there were not enough apples.

C. they had made a group reservation. D. they would eat up too many apples.

34.“Miss Joan’s good mood was now history？”（the last paragraph）means

A. Miss Joan had been happy until that moment.

B. Miss Joan was no longer interested in history.

C. Miss Joan taught her students the history of the orchard.

D. Miss Joan was good at concealing her feelings.

35. What can we learn about Miss Joan from the story？

A. She did not read the brochure carefully.

B. She made a reservation after seeing the brochure.

C. She lost her temper in the end.

D. She didn’t know how to complain.

Passage Two

Both civilization and culture are fairly modern words，having come into prominent use during the 19th century by anthropologists（人类学家），historians，and literary figures. There has been a strong tendency to use them interchangeably as though they mean the same thing，but they are not the same.

Although modern in their usage，the two words derived from ancient Latin. The word civilization is based on the Latin civis，of a city. Thus civilization，in its most essential meaning，is the ability of people to live together harmoniously in cities，in social groupings. From this definition it would seem that certain insects，such as ants or bees，are also civilized. They live and work together in social groups. So do some microorganisms. But there is more to civilization，and that is what culture brings to it. So，civilization is inseparable from culture.

The word culture is derived from the Latin verb colere，till the soil. But colere also has a wider range of meanings. It may，like civis，mean inhabiting a town or village. But most of its definitions suggest a process of starting and promoting growth and development. One may cultivate a garden；one may also cultivate one’s interests，mind，and abilities. In its modern use the word culture refers to all the positive aspects and achievements of humanity that make mankind different from the rest of the animal world. Culture has grown out of creativity，a characteristic that seems to be unique to human beings.

One of the basic and best-known features of civilization and culture is the presence of tools. But more important than their simple existence is that the tools are always being improved and enlarged upon，a result of creativity. It took thousands of years to get from the first wheel to the latest，most advanced model of automobile.

It is the concept of humans as toolmakers and improvers that differentiates them from other animals. A monkey may use a stick to knock a banana from a tree，but that stick will never，through a monkey’s cleverness，be modified into a hook or a ladder. Monkeys have never devised a spoken language，written a book，composed a melody，built a house，or painted a portrait. To say that birds build nests and beavers（海狸）their dens is to miss the point. People once lived in caves， but their cleverness， imagination， and creativity led them to progress beyond caves to buildings.

36. What does the author think of the words“civilization”and“culture”?

A. They are identical.

B. They are different concepts.

C. They can often be used interchangeably.

D. They are defined differently by different people.

37. According to the author the word“civilization”originally refers to .

A. people’s way of life in cities

B. people’s ability to live together in cities

C. a type of social organizations

D. an advanced level of social life

38. The Latin verb colere originally means“ ”.

A. live in a city B. develop oneself

C. promote growth D. cultivate the land

39. The author believes that creativity .

A. is a unique feature of civilized beings

B. brings forth the improvement of tools

C. is the result of human development

D. helps the advance of culture

40. The author mentions monkeys in the last paragraph to show that .

A. monkeys are the same as birds

B. people once lived in caves like monkeys

C. monkeys can never develop into human beings

D. man is different from other animals such as monkeys

Passage Three

The huge growth of global “ ecotourism ” industry is becoming an increasing concern for conservationists with mounting evidence that many wild species do not respond well to contact with human beings. Overexposure to tourists has been linked to stress， abnormal behaviour and adverse health effects in species such as polar bears，dolphins and gorillas（大猩猩），says a report in New Scientist.

While regulated ecotourism can help conservation efforts by encouraging people to manage endangered species and their habitats，many projects are poorly designed and unregulated，it says. “ Many ecotourist projects are unaudited， unauthorized and merely hint they are based on environmentally friendly policies and operations.”

Ecotourism is growing by 10 to 30 percent a year and an estimated 20 percent of tourists are thought to visit a conservation-based project. Philip Seddon， of the University of Otago in New Zealand，said that although most tourist projects conformed to basic guidelines on land use and not scaring wildlife， their full impact was rarely considered.

“Transmission of disease to wildlife， or subtle changes to wildlife health through disturbance of daily routines or increased stress levels may translate to lowered survival and breeding，”he said. Research at the University of Auckland has shown that dolphins become restless and overactive when many tourist boats are present. When three or more boats are near， the dolphins rest for 0.5 percent of the time， compared with 68 percent when they are accompanied by a single boat. The findings are backed up by studies of dolphins in Britain. Researchers at the University of Manitoba in Canada have found that male polar bears easily disturbed by tourist vehicles, with a possible effect on their heart rate and metabolism（新陈代谢）. That could reduce body fat levels and fitness, critical for survival.

In Africa, gorillas have picked up parasites introduced to their habitat by tourists and mongooses（蠓）have caught lung diseases from human beings. Experts said that the answer to the problems was better regulation and supervision of ecotourism. The Galapagos Islands, where visitor numbers are strictly controlled, is a good model.

41. Ecotourism is meant to .

A. have tourists help in the conservation of wildlife

B. have wild species respond well to contact with humans

C. make wild species reduce stress and abnormal behaviour

D. make conservationists more concerned with wildlife

42. According to New Scientist, many ecotourist projects .

A. really encourage people to protect wildlife and its habitat

B. strictly follow environmentally friendly policies

C. actually lack proper examination and official approval

D. seriously damage the habitats of endangered species

43. What will happen to wildlife ultimately if the present "ecotourism" practice goes on?

Passage Four

Computers can beat chess champion Gary Kasparov at his game, count all the atoms in a nuclear explosion, and calculate complex figures in a fraction of a second, but they still fail at the slight differences in language translation. Artificial Intelligence computers have large amounts of memory, capable of storing huge translating dictionaries and extensive lists of grammar rules. Yet, today's best computer language translators have just a 60 percent accuracy rate. Scientists are still unable to program the computer with human-like common sense reasoning power.

Computer language translation is called Machine Translation, or MT. While not perfect, MT is surprisingly good. MT was designed to process dry, technical language that people find tedious to translate. Computers can translate basic phrases, such as"You foot bone's connected to your ankle bone, your ankle bone's connected to your leg bone." They can translate more difficult phrases, such as"Which witch is which?" Computers can also accurately translate"Wild thing, you make my heart sing!"into other languages because they can understand individual words, as long as the words are pre-programmed in their dictionary.

But highly sensitive types of translating，such as important diplomatic conversations，are beyond the scope of computer translating programs. Human translators use intuitional meaning，not logic，to process words and phrases into other languages. A human can properly translate the phrase，“The pen is in the pen（围养禽畜的圈），”because most humans know that it means that a writing instrument is in a small enclosed space. Many times， computers do not have the ability to determine in which way two identical words in one sentence are to be used.

In addition to using massive rule-programmed machines，computer programmers are also trying to teach computers to learn how to think for themselves through the“experience”of translating. Even with these efforts，programmers admit that a“thinking”computer might not ever be invented in the future.

46. Computers today are capable of .

A. defeating the best chess player in the world

B. telling subtle differences between languages

C. translating over 60 percent of difficult texts

D. doing human-like common sense reasoning

47. According to the passage， which of the following is NOT true？

A. Computers can translate dry and difficult phrases.

B. Computers can understand sensitive language.

C. Computers can translate technical language.

D. Computers can understand pre-programmed words.

48. The major problem with computer translating programs is that computers .

A. can not translate illogical sentences

B. do not have a large enough capacity of memory

C. can not understand grammatical rules

D. do not have intuition to process language

49. To improve machine translation，computer programmers are trying to .

A. use powerful rule-programmed computers

B. teach computers to think by practice

C. have computers compile translating dictionaries

D. add explanations of words in computer programs

50. The passage suggests that .

A. the accuracy rate of machine translation cannot be raised

B. it is impossible for computers to think as humans do

C. only technical language is suitable for machine translation

D. it is impossible to determine of identical words

Passage Five

Several years ago during the dot-com passion，Manhattan lawyer John Kennedy sometimes wore a dark blue suit to meet potential Internet clients. But he soon realized that his conservative clothes were a strike against him before he even shook hands. So he began to do business in casual，open-shirt clothes.

But now the tables have turned. Today Silicon Valley executives are the ones often coming out in suits. No wonder that Fortune 500 executives are dusting off their silk ties and pants. “I would say there is a trend now toward a little more business dress， ” said Kennedy.“I find myself wearing suits more.”

While there isn't a rush toward formal office wear, clothiers and executives say the workplace uniform is heading that way. In many offices, men are wearing jackets, ties and pants more frequently than a year ago. Top women executives never went as casual as men, so the shift doesn't affect them as dramatically.

"Business casual" took several years to catch on. It started with casual Fridays, evolved to casual summers, then became casual everyday. A return to the button-down look also will take time, observers say. Lehman Brothers is one of the few major firms that has officially returned to a formal dress policy, at least for offices that clients visit. Men were told to wear suits and ties and women to wear suits or dresses. The shift is due to a rethinking of work environments and more contacts with clients as the firm has grown.

Observers mention many factors driving the trend. Internet companies helped lead the dress-down movement and other industries followed suit to attract workers. But with the collapse of many dot-coms, the relaxed look is becoming a style to avoid. Moreover, as the economy stumbles, more people are hunting for jobs or trying to keep the ones they have, and appearance counts.

US President Bush wears a coat and tie in the White House office and expects his staff to dress "professionally," which some say sets a tone for the nation.

Chuck Wardell, managing director of a recruiting firm, believes a lot of employees like a stiffer uniform. "They're going to work. They don't want to feel like they're going to a picnic."

51. "Business casual" was prevalent several years ago because .

A. the Manhattan law business grew very quickly
B. shaking hands with clients became popular
C. the country was fighting the conservatives
D. the Internet companies boomed then

52. When the "business casual" prevailed, .

A. businessmen wore ties only in workplace
B. businessmen didn't wear ties at all
C. businesswomen didn't wear formally in workplace
D. businesswomen still wore formally everywhere

53. The Fortune 500 executives .

A. set the trend toward more casual wear
B. are particular about what they wear
C. begin to wear suits more often than before
D. are usually indifferent to fashion trend

54. At the beginning of the "business casual" trend, business people wore casually .

A. when meeting clients
B. on weekends
C. in summer
D. almost every day

55. It is implied in the passage that the change of business dress from the casual to the formal reflects .

A. the change of people's taste in fashion
B. the ups and downs of the fashion industry
C. the ups and downs of the Internet companies
D. people's different preference in business dress

Part Ⅲ Reading Comprehension（45minutes，25points）

Directions：There are five passages in this part. Each passage is followed by five questions or unfinished statements. For each of them there are four choices marked A，B，C and D. Choose the best one and mark the corresponding letter with a single bar across the square brackets on your machine-scoring ANSWER SHEET.

Passage One

At all ages and at all stages of life，fear presents a problem to almost everyone.“We are largely the playthings of our fears，”wrote the British author Horace Walpole many years ago.“To one，fear of the dark；to another，of physical pain；to a third，of public ridicule；to a fourth，of poverty；to a fifth，of loneliness—for all of us our particular creature waits in a hidden place.”

Fear is often a useful emotion. When you become frightened，many physical changes occur within your body. Your heartbeat and responses quicken；your pupils expand to admit more light；large quantities of energy-producing adrenalin（肾上腺素）are poured into your bloodstream.

Confronted with a fire or accident，fear can fuel life-saving flight(逃离). Similarly，when a danger is psychological rather than physical，fear can force you to take self-protective measures. It is only when fear is disproportional to the danger at hand that it becomes a problem.

Some people are simply more vulnerable to fear than others. A visit to the newborn nursery of any large hospital will demonstrate that， from the moment of their births， a few fortunate infants respond calmly to sudden fear-producing situations such as a loudly slammed door. Yet a neighbor in the next bed may cry out with profound fright. From birth， he or she is more prone to learn fearful responses because he or she has inherited a tendency to be more sensitive.

Further， psychologists know that our early experiences and relationships strongly shape and determine our later fears. A young man named Bill， for example， grew up with a father who regarded each adversity as a temporary obstacle to be overcome with imagination and courage. Using his father as a model， Bill came to welcome adventure and to trust his own ability to solve problems.

Phil’s dad， however， spent most of his time trying to protect himself and his family. Afraid to risk the insecurity of a job change， he remained unhappy in one position. He avoided long vacations because“the car might break down.”Growing up in such a home，Phil naturally learned to become fearful and tense.

31. In the last sentence of Paragraph 1， “our particular creature”refers to .

A. fear of something　　B. a fierce beast

C. physical pain　　D. public ridicule

32. Fear can be useful emotion to us because it can .

A. stimulate many physical changes within our body

B. quicken our heartbeat and responses

C. pour large quantities of adrenaline into our bloodstream

D. help us respond quickly to danger and protect ourselves

33. Fear becomes a problem only when .

A. the danger is thought greater than it really is

B. the danger is more psychological than physical

C. one cannot stand the danger

D. one is not well prepared for it

34. Different responses of newborn infants to a loudly slammed door imply that .

A. some people are inherently more easily affected by danger

B. people’s response to stimuli is not an inherited feature

C. some people seem to be very sensitive to noise

D. people sometimes seem to turn a deaf ear to noise

35. Psychologists have found that our later fears are determined largely by our .

A. home education　　B. school education

C. parents’ lifestyle　　D. early experiences

Passage Two

Sea horses are unusual parents. The female sea horses lay the eggs，but unlike other creatures，it’s the males that give birth to the young.

Male sea horse have a fold of skin on their bellies that forms a pocket，called a brood pouch. During the breeding season，the sea horse’s pouch swells to receive eggs. A female sea horse lays up to 200 eggs at a time in the pouch. Then she swims off，leaving her male partner to care for the developing eggs and give birth to young sea horses. The female will return every day to check on her mate and the eggs， but she doesn’t stay long， nor does she take part in the birth.

It takes from two to six weeks for the eggs in the male's pouch to develop. During this time the male avoids open water and hides in sea grass. His big pouch makes it difficult for him to swim，so the male often uses his tail to grasp a piece of sea grass. Firmly，gripping the grass，he will stay perfectly still for hours or even days. The male sea horse will change his color to blend with his surroundings and avoid being seen by predators who will try to eat him or poke holes in his pouch to get the eggs.

The eggs hatch inside the male's pouch. When the babies begin moving around，the male sea horse knows it's time for them to be born. He grabs a sea grass stem with his tail and begins rocking，bending，and stretching his body back and forth. This causes the opening to enlarge until it is wide enough for the first baby sea horse to shoot out. The father sea horse continues rocking，bending，and stretching his body so that the rest of the babies can be born. Sometimes he has to press his pouch against a rock or some stiff seaweed to force the young out.

Sea horse babies are born in groups of five or more. Sometimes it takes two days for the father sea horse to give birth to all his young. He is very tired when it's over.

Soon after giving birth to one brood，the male will approach his mate and show her his empty pouch. This tells her he is ready to receive eggs again.

36. What part does the female sea horse play in having babies?

A. Receiving eggs.　　B. Laying eggs.

C. Hatching eggs.　　D. Protecting eggs.

37. What can be learned from the passage about giving birth to baby sea horses?

A. It is dangerous for the female.　　B. It happens once a year.

C. It is hard work for the male.　　D. It occurs in the deep sea.

38. To protect himself and his eggs，the male sea horse does all the following EXCEPT .

A. changing his color　　B. gripping a piece of grass

C. staying motionless　　D. enlarging his pouch

39. The author suggests when sea horse babies are ready to be born .

A. the male sea horse seems very happy

B. it is difficult for them to come out

C. the female sea horse joins the male

D. they need large space in the pouch

40. Which fact does the author want the reader to remember most?

A. The male sea horse gives birth to the young.

B. The female sea horse lays up to 200 eggs at a time.

C. Baby sea horse are born in groups of five or more.

D. The female will return every day to check on the eggs.

Passage Three

When 23-year-old Eric Atienza graduated from college last year，he didn't have a job. Not wanting to give up his apartment and move back with his parents，he did what many young Americans are doing：he signed up with a temp agency，which places workers on short-term jobs. Temporary workers such as Atienza comprise 20 percent of the US workforce. In 1985，417000 workers were classified as temporary help. In 2005，there are more than 2.5 million，according to Labour Department data.

Using temporary workers allows companies to increase or decrease the number of staff as their workloads change. It also allows companies to avoid the costs involved in hiring and firing long-term employees.

Many temp agency owners and career specialists say temping is a good way for recent graduates to get experience. "Short-term jobs let graduates try out different companies to find the best fit," said Pegi Wheatley, owner of McCall Staffing, a San Francisco temp agency.

But things don't always work out that way. "When I started temping, I had this notion that a temporary job could turn full-time. It worked for a friend of mine, but that didn't happen for me," said Atienza, who quickly became bored with his office work. Atienza stayed with the temp agency because he could earn US $ 10 an hour doing office work. Other short-term jobs, such as working as a store clerk or in a café, pay about US $ 7.

But there were trade-offs for the higher pay. Because in the US, health insurance is provided through employer, most temps are not eligible for workplace health benefits. Atienza ran the risk that an accident or illness would land him in the hospital with no way to pay the bill. Other drawbacks, though less serious, still mean that temping for most graduates is exactly what its name implies—a temporary choice. Instability, gaps between contracts, lack of vacation time and isolation from other employees are often-cited negatives.

"Temping gave me the time to figure out what I wanted to do, because I could pay off my bills. But none of that came from the jobs themselves," said Atienza, who quit temping last month in favor of a full-time job.

41. Atienza took a short-term job mainly because .

A. he didn't want to give up his apartment B. he liked to try out different companies

C. he wanted to get more experience D. he couldn't find a long-term job

42. According to the passage, in the year of 2005, the United States had a workforce of more than .

A. 25 million B. 12.5 million C. 4.17 million D. 2.5 million

43. Which is NOT mentioned as an advantage of temping?

A. It gives recent graduates experience.

B. It enables employers to adjust their workforce.

C. A temporary job will turn full-time.

D. Employers can reduce their costs.

44. Atinenza stayed with the temp agency for some time because_____.

A. he liked his office work B. he was satisfied with the pay

C. his employer provided health insurance D. he hated gaps between contracts

45. What does the word "trade-offs" in Paragraph five mean?

A. Benefits B. Compromises C. Risks D. Disadvantages

Passage Four

Scientists are hoping to eliminate malaria（疟疾）by developing a genetically modified mosquito that cannot transmit the disease. Malaria has long troubled the populations of South America, Africa, and Asia, where mosquito bites infect up to 500 million people a year with this serious and sometimes fatal parasitic blood disease. For generations, scientists have been trying to eliminate malaria by developing new drugs and using pesticide（杀虫剂）to wipe out local mosquito populations. But these measures aren't working—and some scientists, like Greg Lanzaro, say that because of drug resistance and population changes, malaria is actually more prevalent now than it was 20 years ago. Lanzaro says he has a better way to stop the spread of malaria: genetically modifying mosquitoes so they are unable to carry the disease.

Lanzaro and his colleagues are planning a multi-year project to produce malaria-resistant mosquitoes—and he thinks they can do it within five years. "We can get foreign genes into mosquitoes and they go where they're supposed to go," Lanzaro says, pointing out that scientists have already succeeded in genetically engineering mosquitoes that cannot transmit malaria to birds and mice. And, he says, scientists are quickly making progress on genes that block transmission of the disease to humans as well.

The most difficult part scientifically, Lanzaro says, is figuring out how to get the lab-engineered mosquitoes to spread their genes into natural populations after all, he points out, it's useless to engineer mosquitoes in the lab that can't transmit malaria when there are millions out in the wild that can. To solve this problem, Lanzaro wants to load up a mobile piece of DNA with the malaria-resistant gene, and then insert it into a group of mosquito embryos. The malaria-resistant gene would be integrated directly into the mosquitoes' DNA, making it impossible for those mosquitoes to transmit the parasite that causes malaria. In this way a small group of lab-raised mosquitoes could be released into the wild, and by interbreeding with wild mosquitoes, eventually transmit the beneficial gene to the entire population.

46. One reason for malaria to be more widespread now is that .

A. more people have moved to malaria-infected areas

B. mosquitoes have become resistant to pesticides

C. genetically modified mosquitoes still transmit the disease

D. mosquitoes bite as many as 500 million people a year

47. Lanzaro is hopeful that in a few year man can .

A. start to eliminate malaria B. cure parasitic blood diseases

C. prevent mice form transmitting parasites D. acquire immunity against malaria

48. Lanzaro is confident that scientists can block the transmissions of malaria to humans because .

A. natural mosquito populations do not change

B. scientists have succeeded with birds and mice

C. foreign genes always go where they are required

D. lab-raised mosquitoes will not be resistant to drugs

49. What is the most difficult part of Lanzaro's project?

A. Spreading malaria-resistant genes into natural mosquito populations.

B. Raising malaria-resistant mosquitoes.

C. Making genes that block the transmission of malaria.

D. Identifying malaria-resistant genes.

50. According to the passage, a fundamental way to wipe out malaria is to .

A. develop new malaria-resistant drugs

B. produce effective pesticides to kill mosquitoes

C. change the genetic makeup of mosquitoes

D. remove people from malaria-infected areas

Passage Five

According to Scott Adams, creator of the comic strip(系列漫画)Dilbert, the annual performance review is "one of the most frightening and weakening experiences in every employee's life. Adam's stories and comic figures poke fun at the workplace, but his characterization of people' s feelings about the annual performance review has its serious side. Although a recent study of 437 companies indicates that effective annual performance reviews can help raise profits，most employees of those companies hate them.

In theory，annual performance reviews are constructive and positive interactions between managers and employees working together to attain maximum performance and strengthen the organization. In reality，they often create division，undermine morale，and spark anger and jealousy. Thus，although the object of the annual performance review is to improve performance，it often has the opposite result. A programmer at an IT firm was stunned to learn at her annual performance review that she was denied a promotion because she wasn't a "team player". What were the data used to make this judgment? She didn't smile in the company photo.

Although this story might sound as if it came straight out of Dilbert，it is a true account of one woman's experience. By following a few ideas and guidelines from industry analysis，this kind of ordeal can be avoided:

To end the year with a positive and useful performance review，managers and employees must start the year by working together to establish clear goals and expectations.

It may be helpful to allow employees to propose a list of people associated with the company who will be in a good position to assess their performance at the end of the year; these people may be co-workers，suppliers，or even customers.

Goals should be measurable but flexible，and everyone should sign off on the plan.

By checking employees' progress at about nine months，managers can give them a chance to correct mistakes and provide guidance to those who need it before the year is out.

When conducting the review，managers should highlight strengths and weaknesses during the past year and discuss future responsibilities，avoiding punishment or blame.

In short，when employees leave their performance reviews，they should be focusing on what they can do better in the year ahead，not worrying about what went into their files about the past.

51. In his comic strip Dilbert，Scott Adams .

A. make fun of working people　　B. tells a story about as woman employee

C. promote team spirit among co-workers　　D. mocks annual performance reviews

52. All the following are mentioned as the drawbacks of annual performance reviews EXCEPT .

A. reducing efficiency　　B. creating tension

C. undermining morale　　D. inducing anger

53. The word"ordeal"Paragraph 3 probably refers to .

A. likelihood of promotion　　B. depressive experience

C. poor performance　　D. unrealistic expectation

54. The annual performance reviews，to be effective，must focus on .

A. making employees aware of their company's future goals

B. involving employees in assessing their own performance

C. encouraging employees to achieve better future performance

D. highlighting what responsibilities employees have failed in

55. The general attitude of the author toward Adam's comic strip Dilbert is .

A. negative　　B. positive　　C. neutral　　D. unclear

Section A

Directions：Translate the following passage into Chinese. Write your translation on the ANSWER SHEET.

One of the chief concerns of wildlife management is the protection and improvement of the natural habitat so that animals have enough food and water to survive. Wildlife management involves care of the soil to produce good vegetation; it also involves care of plants, not only as a source of food, but also as protection. Animals need cover to hide from their natural enemies and to raise their young safely.

Just as crops are harvested, wildlife too must sometimes be "harvested". By allowing limited hunting, good management can control certain species that threaten to overpopulate their habitat.

The Greatest Invention in the Past Century
Of all the inventions and discoveries in the century，nothing can be more influencing than the invention of Internet. People who emphasize either the advantages or disadvantages have to acknowledge that Internet has become the essential part of our daily work and lives.
Internet is the best information center. It is widely agreed that by using Internet，we can get access to information more easily and quickly. For example，we can read the latest news on Internet instead of buying a large piece of newspaper；we can also deal with our stock shares on the Internet sitting at home. In short，the convenience provided by the Internet helps us all.
Internet also serves as a new way of communication. It is much cheaper than a telephone call，especially a long distance call；it is much quicker than a letter.
Of course，it also has some detrimental influence. For instance，some unhealthy information is spreading and is sent to especially the teenagers. However，nothing could be perfect. It is widely believed that Internet will do us more good than harm as long as we use it carefully and properly.

The increase in the Number of Chinese traveling Abroad
As can be clearly observed from the chart above，the trend of Chinese traveling abroad is mounting these years. In the past three years，the number of Chinese traveling abroad has been on a steady rise. According to the chart，the number increased from 7.5 million in 1999 to 10 million in 2000 and to 12.1 million in 2001.
I think there are at least three reasons for the above mentioned changes. First and foremost，the changes are primarily due to the better income of the Chinese. They are better off and can afford a trip abroad. What's more，they have a lot to do with the development of the travel industry in China. More and more travel agencies are attracting more people to join in their tours abroad. Finally，the changes are closely related to our policy of opening up to the outside world.
From what has been discussed，it is obvious that the increase in the number of Chinese traveling abroad is of great concern of our life. It reflects the improvement of our living standards and development of our economy.

Part III Guided Writing

As the story tells us，we have to think which we are to consider as more important，life or money. The father in the story is the victim of his savings，because he loses his life when trying to get his money out of the house regardless of the risk. The story is intended to tell us that money sometimes brings misfortune if one has become a slave of money. My argument is listed as follows：

On one hand，to be the master of money can make life more meaningful and bring fortune. It is known to all that there are many other things that are more important than money，such as knowledge，health and friendship. Overestimate of the importance and value of money is likely to confine one's activity and thinking to money. As a result，everything else is overlooked and happiness will not come easily.

On the other hand，to be a slave of money can make a person end up with disaster，just as the father in the story. Many crimes are related to money，including robbery，bribery and stealing. This follows that we have to take a positive attitude towards money.

In conclusion，I'll never do such a silly thing as the father has done. Money does mean a lot，but it does not mean everything. I'll learn a lesson from the story and try to devote myself to more important tasks rather than become a slave of money.

There is much discussion nowadays as to whether or not College students should be allowed to get married. Some people think it is humanistic to allow college students to get married，while there are some others who believe that it may make a far-reaching negative impact upon the students' study. Were it left for me to decide whether college students should be allowed to get married or not，I would not hesitate a moment to prefer the latter.

There are a dozen of reasons behind my belief. First of all，academic studying is what the college life should focus on. The whole point of marriage is that it imposes clear obligations，not just the right to pursue your own happiness，but to provide both emotional and practical care for each other，which surely wastes a lot of time.

More importantly，most college students are relying on their parents' financial support to continue their study. Surely，their parents hope they can concentrate on study instead of love affairs.

Most important of all，a great majority of college students are still young，that is，they have not yet developed a sound opinion as to the true implication of love and marriage，thereby，most of their marriages may end up in divorce.

From what we discussed above，we can safely come to the conclusion that it is unwise to allow college students to get married. Because it wasted too much time，money and energy，which greatly influences their studies and both physical and mental welfare. And the rules and regulations should be made by both the college and the governments to be manifest to all college students that college students are forbidden to get married.

College Graduates Work as Village Officials
With the development of the society and the constant increase of job-hunting pressure，many people find it hard to find a job，especially the college graduates. Most of them just want to work in the big and developed cities，such as Shenzhen，Shanghai，etc. But the situation has changed. Some college graduates prefer to work as village officials in the rural areas，I think it is a good idea.
First，it not only can ease the job-hunting pressure in the big cities，but also can make the college graduates have more job chances. Second，the college graduates can bring the advanced science and technology to the lagging rural areas. For example，they can teach the villagers how to feed the pigs effectively and plant the fruits and vegetables scientifically，which can help the villagers live a wealthy life in a short time. Third，the college graduates can exercise themselves in the poor living condition. They can know much more about Chinese farmers，and they may have a better and larger platform to display their talents and abilities.

In a word，I am in favor of this idea，and I wish I could be a village official after graduation.
