Part Ⅲ Reading Comprehension（45 minutes,25 points）

Direction： There are five passages in this part, Each passage is followed by five questions or unfinished statements. For each of them there are four choice marked A,B,C and D. Choose the best one and mark the corresponding letter with a single bar across the square brackets on your machine-scoring ANSWER SHEET.

Passage One

They may be one of Britain's most successful exports and among the world's most popular TV shows, ranking alongside the World Cup Final and the Olympics Games opening ceremony in terms of audience. But, in Britain, beauty competitions are unfashionable. To most people, beauty contests seems as out-dated as bowing. Nicolas Baker, a lawyer in London, said that"As much as I think it's fine for women to do it, I don't think it's interesting and in fact, I think they're irrelevant to today."Last year, Miss World was broadcast to 142 countries, but it wasn't even shown in the country where it started in 1951.

It wasn't always this way in Britain. Once beauty queens dated footballers, traveled the world and were guaranteed fame, fortune and fun. Now, they open new supermarkets, are sponsored by dry-cleaning companies and if they're lucky, they get free clothes from supermarkets.

When Francesca Marchant was crowned Miss Sussex in 1969,it was something to be extremely proud of"I came from a small town, and all my friends were green with envy when they found out I'd won. My boyfriend at the time thought it was terrific and boasted to everyone that he was going out with a beauty queen.

But the good times couldn't last. The feminist movement gathered momentum. Some women were determined to bring an end to these"cattle shows." Nowadays, saying that you were a beauty queen just doesn't sound good.

Miss World organizers claim that contestants are judged on qualities other than just their physical appearance. But Jacqueline Gold, England's representative at this year's contest, was not chosen because of her academic record. The Miss World Website states that she"left school having gained many computer qualifications, and certificates in First Aid and Lift Saving."meaning, not much of an education.

The only time contests attract attention now is because of the protesters. At the 1999 Miss World in Britain around 60 demonstrators hurled flour bombs and fought with the police. They denounced the beauty contest as a" sexist cattle market". They waved banners saying "fat girls are cool" and "women's bodies are not for sale."

31. Beauty contests in Britain are now .

A. bringing huge benefits for the country B. as popular as the World Cup Final

C. no longer popular in the country D. widely protested in the country

32. The attitude of Nicolas Baker towards beauty contests is that .

A. women shouldn't attend the contests

B. the contests are fine but he doesn't like them

C. the contests are insults to women

D. the contests are behind the times

33. In the 60s and 70s,beauty queens .

A. were sponsored by dry-cleaning companies B. were admired by most people

C. did not have a good reputation D. got free clothes from supermarkets

34. The author uses Jacqueline Gold as an example to show that .

A. her academic record was very strong

B. she had gained many qualifications and certificates

C. contestants are judged on physical appearance
D. contestants are judged on their education
35. The best title for passage might be .
A. Beauty Contests：Insults to Women
B. Beauty Contests：Sexist Cattle Market
C. Beauty Contests：A Headache for British people
D. Beauty Contests：Started in Britain but Unpopular Now

Passage Two

A particular area in which assumptions and values differ between cultures is that of friendship. Friendships among Americans tend to be shorter and less intense than these among people from many other cultures. At least many observers from abroad have this impression. Because Americans are taught to be self-reliant, because they live in a very mobile society, and for many other reasons as well, they tend to avoid deep involvement with other people. Furthermore, Americans tend to"compartmentalize"their friendships, having their"friends at work","friends at school",a"tennis friend",and so on. Americans often seem very friendly even when you first meet them. This friendliness does not usually mean that the American is looking for a deeper relationship.

The result of these attitudes and behaviors is sometimes viewed by foreigners as an"inability to be friends". Other times it is seen as a normal way to retain personal happiness in a mobile, ever-changing society.

People normally have in their minds stereotypes about people who are different from themselves. Stereotypes are based on limited and incomplete experience and information, but they shape people's thoughts and expectations. Americans have many stereotypes about foreign students in general（for example, that they are very hard working intelligent, and rich that they do speak English well）and about particular categories of foreign students（Chinese are polite and good at mathematics, for example, or Italians are emotional）. And foreign students have their own stereotypes of Americans, for example, that they are arrogant, rude, and generous.

There are two stereotypes that often affect male-female relationships involving U.S. and foreign students. The first is the idea, held by some foreign males, that American females are invariably willing, if not anxious to have sex. The second common stereotype, held by some American females, is that male foreign students have no interest in American females other than having with them. The existence of these and other stereotypes can give rise to considerable misunderstanding and can block the development of a mutually satisfactory relationship between particular individuals. Stereotypes seem unavoidable given the way the human mind seeks to categorize and classify information, so it is not realistic to suppose people can"forget their stereotypes". But they can be aware of their stereotypes, and be ready to find exceptions to them.

36. Consuming friendship, Americans .
A. look for a deeper relationship in a close circle
B. avoid deep relationship with other people
C. are friendly at first but do not remain so later on
D. do not make good friends
37. The word "compartmentalize" in the first paragraph means" ".
A. separate in categories　　B. treat differently

C. evaluate accordingly D. judge fairly

38. The author's attitude toward the American type of friendship seems to be .

A. approving B. critical C. biased D. objective

39. According to the author, stereotypes concerning male-female relationships involving U.S. and foreign students are .

A. helpful B. meaningless C. harmful D. useless

40. According to the author, stereotypes seem unavoidable because .

A. it is natural to have them B. it is not easy to find exceptions

C. they provide better understanding D. they contribute to friendship

Passage Three

In The Birth Order Book：Why You Are the Way You Are（2004）,Dr. Kevin Leman notes that 21 of the first 23 Americans in space were first-born males or only children. More than half of United States presidents have been first-borns or first-born boys. It's a pretty significant finding historically, because families used to be bigger than they are today.

In addition to being high achievers, older children also generally have higher IQs（智商）than younger ones. Researchers have noted that the more kids a family has, the lower each child's Individual IQ tends to be. They give a few reasons for this：

Parents only have so much time, attention, and money. The more kids they have, the more these things are divided. First-borns initially get the entire parental-time pic. What's more, the ratio of grown-ups to kids decreases with each new baby. So the younger ones are surrounded by more children's language on average than the older kids.

Some researchers think parental attention is the key to personality / birth-order differences. In his book Born to Rebel, psychologist Frank Sulloway competition for Mom and Dad's attention is the thing that really shapes our personalities and, in fact, has shaped history. He argues that we adapt our personalities as part of our strategy to seek favor from Mom and Dad. Younger siblings（兄弟姐妹）tend to become rebels. Sulloway studied political activists and found that later-born activists were more radical than their first-born peers.

The conclusion of his book is that sibling competition for parental attention can affect society as a whole in times of revolution Thomas Jefferson,Karl Marx and Fidel Castro were all younger siblings, for example.

As compelling as this all is, it's also something we should probably take with caution, there are other things that happen to us in life besides the addition of siblings to our families. A parent can die；a hurricane can leave us homeless；we can catch a life-threatening disease. Any one of these things will probably have more of an effect on our personalities than the presence of siblings.

A 2002 study bore this out. After interviewing 535 undergraduates, researchers concluded that personality differences related to birth order were"folklore",although IQ and achievement differences were widely supported by research.

41. What is implied by"the younger ones are surrounded by more children's language on average than the older kids"（Para.3）？

A. Younger children need parental rather than siblings' attention.

B. Younger children need siblings' rather than parental attention.

C. Younger children feel uncomfortable with more siblings.

D. Younger children have less chance to talk with their parents.

42. Sulloway, author of Born to Rebel, suggests that younger siblings .

A. try hard to get attention from their parents
B. are less likely to shape history
C. are winners in getting parental attention
D. seldom adapt their personalities

43. Which of the following is NOT mentioned as a factor shaping personality?

A. Death of a parent. B. Children's language.
C. A natural disaster. D. A fatal disease.

44. What is the meaning of"folklore"in the last paragraph?

A. Traditional customs and beliefs. B. Verified hypotheses.
C. Widely held unsupported notions. D. Tales or sayings preserved orally.

45. Which of the following statements is proposed by researchers?

A. Later-borns do not compete for attention.
B. First-borns tend to become rebels.
C. Later-borns are prone to diseases.
D. First-borns achieve more than younger ones.

Passage Four

Does money buy happiness? It's sometimes said that scientists have found no relationship between money and happiness, but that's a myth, says University of Illinois psychologist Ed Denier.

The connection is complex. In fact, very rich people rate substantially higher in satisfaction with life than very poor people do, even within wealthy nations. He says"There is overwhelming evidence that money buys happiness."said economist Andrew Oswald of the University of Warwick in England. The main debate, he said, is how strong the effect is.

Oswald recently reported a study of Britons who won between $ 2000 and $ 250000 in a lottery（彩票拍奖）. As a group, they showed a boost in happiness averaging a bit more than one point on a 36-point scale when surveyed two years after their win,compared to their levels two years before they won.

Daniel Kahneman, a Nobel-Prize winner and Princeton economist, and colleagues, recently declared that the notion that making a lot of money will produce good overall mood is"mostly illusory". They noted that in one study, members of the high-income group were almost twice as likely to call themselves"very happy"as people from households with incomes below $ 2000. But other studies, rather than asking for a summary estimate of happiness, follow people through the day and repeatedly record their feelings. These studies show less effect of income on happiness, Kahneman and colleagues said.

There is still another twist to the money-happiness story. Even though people who make $ 150000 are considerably happier than those who make $ 40000,it's not clear why, says psychologist Richard E. Lucas of Michigau Sate University.

Researchers conclude that any effect of money on happiness is smaller than most daydreamer assume."People exaggerate how much happiness is bought by an extra few thousand,"Oswald said."The quality of relationships has a far bigger effect than quite large rise in salary...It's much better advice, if you're looking for happiness in life, to try to find the right husband or wife than to try to double your salary."

46. The main purpose of this passage is to discuss .

A. the contributions of household incomes to happiness
B. the complex relationship between money and happiness

C. the positive relations of money to happiness
D. the negative relations of money to happiness
47. Andrew Oswald's study .
A. proves money has little effect on happiness
B. gives evidence that money buys happiness
C. rejects the relation between money and happiness
D. shows that lottery brings people happiness
48. The word"illusory"（para.4）is closest in meaning to" ".
A. dramatic B. ordinary C. drastic D. imaginary
49. According to Lucas, richer people's happiness .
A. comes from their high income
B. may not be directly related to their high income
C. is boosted by their high income
D. is not derived from their high income
50. According to Oswald, a more important factor in bringing about happiness may be good .
A. health B. feelings C. marriage D. salaries
Passage Five
When Frand Dale look over as publisher of Los Angeles Herrald-Examiner,the organization had just ended a ten-year strike. There was much bitterness and as he told us."Everybody that I found there had lost their curiosity, they'd lost their cutting edge, there was no interest, they just hung on ... I had a real problem."His very first task was to introduce himself to everybody, to thank them for their loyalty to that point, and to allow them to express their concerns and frustrations. To questions like"What makes you think you can make this thing go？"he responded, "I don't know yet, but in thirty days I'll come back to you and let you know what I've found."He recruited a task force of the best people from throughout the Hearst Corporation to do a crash study, and in thirty days he had a written report on what needed to be done, which he shared with the staff. He had taken the all-important first steps to establish mutual trust, without which leadership would not have been possible.
Trust is the emotional glue that binds followers and leaders together. The accumulation of trust is a measure of the legitimacy of leadership. It cannot be demanded or purchased；it must be earned. Trust is the basic ingredient of all organizations, the lubrication that maintains the organization and it is as mysterious and difficult a concept as leadership—and as important.
One thing we can say for sure about trust is that if trust is to be generated, there must be predictability, the capacity to predict another's behavior. Another way of putting it is to say that organizations without trust would resemble the ambiguous nightmare of Kafka's The Castle, where nothing can be certain and nobody can be relied on or be held responsible. The ability to predict outcomes with a high probability of success generates and maintains trust.
51. What was Frand Dale's problem when he became the publisher of Los Angeles Herrald-Examiner？
A. He had lost interest in his publishing career.
B. He found it hard to introduce himself to everyone.
C. Los Angeles Herrald-Examiner was in extreme difficulty.
D. Los Angeles Herrald-Examiner was on a ten-year strike.
52. What was the result of Frank Dale's first steps？

A. Mutual trust was established. B. Efficiency was improved.
C. A task force was recruited. D. His promises were fulfilled.

53. According to the author, how could trust be established?
A. By economic means. B. By legitimate measure.
C. By authoritative command. D. By effort or action.

54. What does the author think about trust?
A. It is hard to accumulate. B. It can make organization go.
C. It can help establish authority. D. It is relatively easy to acquire.

55. For what propose is Kafka's The Castle mentioned?
A. To show people's behaviors are predictable. B. To describe the nightmare of the story.
C. To demonstrate the importance of trust. D. To prove no one can be relied on.

Part Ⅳ Cloze（15 minutes,15 points）

The process of the gaining or losing weight can be explained by comparing your body to your car. Both run __56__ fuel, food for your body and gasoline for your car. Both __57__ that fuel, first into heat, then energy, some of __58__ is used to do work, and some emitted as waste. And __59__ your car uses more energy when the engine is racing than when it is idling, __60__ does your body use more energy when you are working hard than __61__ you are resting.

For the purpose of this comparison, __62__,there is one significant difference between them. Your car cannot store fuel by turning it into __63__ else; all gasoline not __64__ remains as gasoline. But your body stores __65__ energy as fat. When the gas tank is __66__ empty, the car won't run; but your body can burn fat to provide more energy.

Therefore, if you want to gain weight, you must do __67__ of two things: eat more calories（units of heat, therefore energy）,or use less through __68__. If you want to lose weight, you do the __69__: decrease your intake of calories or increase the amount of energy you spend. There is __70__ way gaining or losing weight is always a relation between intake and output of potential energy.

Part Ⅰ Translation（30 minutes,20 points）

Section A

Directions： Translate the following passage into Chinese. Write your translation on the ANSWER SHEET.

The standardized educational or psychological test that are widely used to aid in selecting,classifying,assigning,or promoting students,employees,and military personnel have been the target of recent attacks in books,magazines,the daily press,and even in congress. The target is wrong,for in attacking the tests,critics divert attention from the fault that lies with ill-informed or incompetent users. The tests themselves are merely tools,with characteristics that can be measured with reasonable precision under specified conditions. Whether the results will be valuable,meaningless,or even misleading depends partly upon the tool itself but largely upon the user.

PartⅢ Reading Comprehension (45minutes, 25point)

Directions: There are 5 passages in this part. Each passage is followed by 5 questions or unfinished statements. For each of them there are 4 choices marked A, B, C and D. Choose the best one and mark the corresponding letter with a single bar across the square brackets on your machine-scoring ANSWER SHEET.

Passage One

The job was done, and it was time for a last cigarette. Eddie began tapping the pockets of his overalls, looking for the new packet of Marlboro be had bought that morning. It was not there.

It was as he swung around to look in his toolbox for the cigarettes that Eddie saw the lump. Right in the middle of the brand new bright red carpet, there was a lump. A lump the size of a packet of cigarettes.

“I’ve done it again!” said Eddie angrily. “I’ve left the cigarettes under the carpet!”

He had done this once before, and taking up and refitting the carpet had taken him two hours. Eddie was determined that he was not going to spend another two hours in this house. He decided to get rid of the lump another way. It would mean wasting a good packet of cigarettes, nearly full, but anything was better than taking up the whole carpet and fitting it again. He turned to his toolbox for a large hammer.

Eddie didn’t want to damage the carper itself, so he took a block of wood and placed it on top of the lump. Then he began to beat the block of wood as hard as he could .He kept beating, hoping Mrs. Vanbrugh wouldn’t hear the noise and come to see what he was doing. It would be difficult to explain why he was hammering the middle of her beautiful new carpet…The lump was beginning to flatten out.

After three or four minutes, the job was finally finished. Eddie picked up his tools, and began to walk out to his car. Mrs. Vanbrugh accompanied him. She seemed a little worried about something.

"Young man, while you were working today. you didn't by any chance see any sign of Armand, did you ?Armand is my bird. I let him out of his cage, you see, this morning, and he's disappeared. He likes to walk around the house, and he usually just comes back to his cage after an hour or so and gets right in. Only today he didn't come back. He's never done such a thing before, it's most peculiar…."

"No, madam, I haven't seen him anywhere," said Eddie, as he reached to start the car.

And he saw his packet of Marlboro cigarettes on the panel, where he had left it at lunchtime….

And he remembered the lump in the carpet….

31 what did Eddie want to do when he had finished fitting the carpet?

A. To have a cigarette.

B. To hammer the carpet flat.

C. To put back his tools.

D. To start work in the dinning room.

32. Why didn't Eddie take out the thing under the carpet?

A. it was impossible for him to take up the carpet once it was fitted.

B. he didn't need the cigarettes because he had some more in the car.

C. it would take too long to take up the carpet and refit it.

D. he intended to come back and remove the lump the next day.

33. What did Eddie do with the hammer?

A. He drove nails into the lump.

B. He fixed his toolbox.

C. He refitted the carpet.

D. He flattened the lump.

34. Mrs. Vanbrugh worried that_____.

A. her pet was nowhere to be found

B. fitting the carpet would be expensive

C. Eddie would smoke in the house

D. Eddie hadn't done a proper job

35. What was really under the carpet?

A. The packet of cigarettes.

B. Eddie's hammer.

C.A lump of wood.

D. The missing pet.

Passage Two

If two scientists at Los Alamos National Laboratory are correct, people will still be driving gasoline-powered cars 50 years from now, giving out heat-trapping carbon dioxide into the atmosphere--and yet that carbon dioxide will not contribute to global warming. The scientists, F. Jeffrey Martin and William L. Kubic Jr. are proposing a concept, which they have patriotically named Green Freedom for removing carbon dioxide from the air and turning it back into gasoline.

The idea is simple. Air would be blown over a liquid solution which would absorb the carbon dioxide. The carbon dioxide would then be extracted and subjected to chemical reactions that would turn it into fuel. Although they have not yet built a fuel factory, or even a small prototype, the scientists say it is all based on existing technology. "Everything in the concept has been built, is operating or has a close cousin that is operating." Dr. Martin said. The proposal does not violate any laws of physics, and other scientists have independently suggested similar ideas.

In the efforts to reduce humanity's emissions of carbon dioxide, three solutions have been offered: hydrogen-powered cars, electric cars and biofuels. Biofuels are gasoline substitutes produced from plants like corn or sugar cane. Plants absorb carbon dioxide as they grow, but growing crops for fuel takes up wide strips of land. Hydrogen-powered cars emit no carbon dioxide, but producing hydrogen requires energy, and if that energy comes from coal-fired power plants, then the problem has not been solved. The problem with electric cars is that they have typically been limited to a range of tens of miles as opposed to the hundreds of miles that can be driven on a tank of gas.

Gasoline, it turns out, is an almost ideal fuel (except that it produces carbon dioxide).If it can be made out of carbon dioxide in the air, the Los Alamos concept may mean there is little reason to switch, after all.

"It's definitely worth pursuing," said Martin I. Hoffert, a professor of physics at New York University. "It has a couple of pieces to it that are interesting." Other scientists also said the proposal looked promising but could not evaluate it fully because the details had not been published.

36. What is most remarkable about the proposal made by the two scientists?

A. It is given a patriotic name.

B. No law of physics is violated.

C. It is based on existing technology.

D. Carbon dioxide can be converted into fuel.

37. What is the biggest problem with hydrogen-powered cars?

A. There is no cheap source of hydrogen.

B. There might be a safety problem in hydrogen production.

C. They may still be a cause of global warming.

D. They are not suitable for long-distance travel.

38. If what is proposed by the two scientists become true, _____.

A. air pollution will become a thing of the past

B. there will be no need for gasoline substitutes

C. people will be able to use much cheaper energy

D. there will be no more biofuel-powered vehicles

39. Which of the following can best describe the attitude of Martin I. Hoffert to the proposal?

A. Indifferent B. Positive

C. Suspicious D. Critical

40. The passage is mainly written to_____.

A. introduce a new concept

B. compare different energy sources

C. stress the importance of gasoline

D. discuss solutions to global warming

Passage Three

In her international bestselling Talk to the Hand, author Lynne Truss argues that common courtesies such as saying "Excuse me" are practically extinct. There are certainly plenty who would agree with her.

Is it true? We decided to find out by experiments. In dozens of American cities, our reporters performed two experiments: "door tests"(would anyone hold one open for them?); and "document drops"(who would help them retrieve a pile of "accidentally" dropped papers?). Along the way, the reporters encountered all types: men and women of different races, ages, professions, and income levels.

While 90 percent of the people passed the door test, only 55 percent passed the document drop. Are people less likely to help others when doing so takes extra effort or time? Not always, the reporters found.

Take the pregnant woman who thought nothing of bending down to help us with our papers. Or the woman named Liz who balanced two coffees, her keys and her wallet on a takeout tray with one hand, while picking up papers off the wet pavement with the other .Her reason for helping? “I was there,” she said.

Overall, men were the most willing to help, especially when it came to document drops. In those, men offered aid 63 percent of the time, compared to 47 percent among women. Of course, men were not entirely democratic about whom they’d help. All of them held the door for the female reporter, and were more than twice as likely to help her pick up fallen papers than they were to help our male reporter.

By far, the most common reason people cited for being willing to go out of their way to help others was their upbringing. “It’s the way I was raised.” said one young woman who held a door open despite struggling with her umbrella on a rainy day in Brooklyn.

We realize this isn’t a rigorous scientific study, but we believe it is a reasonable real-world test of good manners around the globe. And it’s comforting to know that in a place where millions of people push one another each day to get ahead, they’re able to do it with a smile. Hey, if they can make nice here, they can make nice anywhere.

41. Which of the following is the best word to describe he experiments?

A. Scientific. B. Biased

C. Revolutionary. D. Realistic

42. The examples of the pregnant woman and Liz are used to show that some people____.

A. may take the trouble to help others

B. won’t take the trouble to help others

C. may help others save time

D. won’t help others save time

43. According to the experiments, _____.

A. women are more careful

B. woman are more likely to need help

C. men are more ready to help

D. men are more democratic in helping others.

44. Helping others is a behavior that is largely influenced by _____

A. social norm

B. family education

C. specific situation

D. personal character

45 The results of the experiments have shown that common courtesies_____

A. Are still with us

B. are disappearing

C. vary with professions

D. need rigorous study

Passage Four

Within a large concrete room, cut out of a mountain on a freezing-cold island just 1,000 kilometers from the North Pole, could lie the future of humanity.

The room is a vault(地下库) designed to hold around 2 million seeds, representing all known varieties of the world’s crops. It is being built to safeguard the word’s food supply against nuclear war, climate change, terrorism, rising sea levels, earthquakes and the collapse of electricity supplies “if the worst came to the worst, this would allow the world to reconstruct agriculture on this planet,” says Cary Fowler, director of the global Crop Diversity Trust ,an independent international organization promoting the project .

The Norwegian (挪威的)government is planning to create the seed bank next year at the request of crop scientists. The $3 million vault will be built deep inside a sandstone mountain on the Norwegian Arctic island of Spitsbergen. The vault will have metre-thick walls of reinforced concrete and will be protected behind two airlocks and high-security doors.

The vault's seed collection will represent the products of some 10,000 years of plant breeding by the world's farmers, though most are no longer widely planted, the varieties contain vital genetic properties still regularly used in plant breeding .

To survive, the seeds need freezing temperatures. Operators plan to replace the air inside the vault each winter, when temperatures in Spitsbergen are around -18 °C. But even if some disaster meant that the vault was abandoned, the permanently frozen soil would keep the seeds alive. And ever accelerated global warming would take many decades to penetrate the mountain vault.

"This will be the world's most secure gene bank.," says Fowler. "But its seeds will only be used when all other samples have gone for some reason."

The project comes at a time when there is growing concern about the safety of existing seed banks around the world .Many have been criticized for their poor security, ageing refrigeration(冷藏）systems and vulnerable electricity supplies.

The scheme won UN approval at a meeting of the Food and Agriculture Organization in Rome in October 2005. A feasibility study sail the facility "would essentially be built last forever."

46. The Norwegian vault is important in that_____

A. the seeds in it represent the rarest varieties of world's crops.

B. the seeds in it could revive agriculture if the worst thing should happen.

C. it is built deep in a mountain on a freezing-cold Arctic island.

D. it is strong enough against all disasters caused by man and nature

47. The seed bank project was proposed by_____.

A. the Norwegian government　　B. Norwegian farmers

B. Spitsbergen residents　　D. agricultural scientists

48. The seeds in the vault will be stored_____.

A. as samples of world crop varieties

B. as products of world plant breeding

C. for their valuable genetic properties

D. for their resistance to plant diseases

49. For the seed bank project to be successful, the most important factor is probably_____.

A. constructing tight airlocks

B. maintaining high security

C. keeping freezing temperatures

D. storing large quantities of seeds

50. Which of the following statements is true?

A. The Norwegian vault models after existing seed banks

B. The Spitsbergen seed bank is expected to last 10,000 years

C. The existing seed banks have potential problems

D. The UN financed the Spitsbergen seed bank

Passage Five

Probably the hardest of setting goals is the first step of actually deciding to take action! The first barrier facing most people is the incorrect assumption that goals are only for business people. The reality is everyone sets goals mentally throughout the day. There are always occasions where something has to be done at a particular time or in a particular place. Simple examples could be getting up at certain time in order to be at work, or to meet with a friend for a leisure activity.

The beauty of having goals is the uniqueness of each one to the goal setter. Whether it is personal, financial, business, or spiritual, they are all specific to that person and their circumstances.

The most important part initially is to write them down. Having goals written down gives you incredible power while helping you to focus on this area.

Aim for something that will stretch you while remaining achievable. If you achieve your goal too easily, it is not high enough to make any significant change in your life and needs to be adjusted. On the other hand, if you consistently miss the goals, re-evaluate, and consider setting them a little lower as you will only get discouraged and probably give up. The aim is to keep growing, and moving into a more satisfactory position for your particular circumstances.

As you obtain the levels that you have set for yourself, always include a small reward at each point. This might only be a small thing in the early days like a meal out or a weekend vacation.

Remember that these changes will not happen overnight and there will be a period of time when nothing seems be happening. This is why the goals need to be detailed and as specific as possible with a consequence and benefit.

Allow some time on a daily basis to educate yourself on how to make the necessary adjustments in your life. This could include listening to a CD, or reading a book on motivation etc.

A simple method to start with could be one goal in the main areas of life to be achieved in one month, six months, twelve months or five years .break that down further into a daily, weekly and monthly system. Stay focused and disciplined to achieve all that you desire.

51. The simple examples in Paragraph 1convey the message that _____

A. goals are set mostly for important things

B. most people know when it is time to set goals

C. people set goals to get things done all the time

D. it is necessary to set goals occasionally

52. The charm of having goals is that each goal is _____

A. important B. motivated

C. special D. spiritual

53 A good goal is one that _____

A. keeps growing all the time B. is high enough yet attainable

C. moves one into a satisfactory position D. is evaluated from time to time

54. Goals have to be detailed so that people _____.

A. can know their achievements at each stage

B. will eventually reach the levels set for themselves

C. may get small rewards such as a meal out

D. can adjust them on various occasions

55. For a goal to be achieved, one has to _____.

A believe in what he is doing

B adapt oneself to new changes

C divert from routine sometimes

D concentrate on it until it is attained

Part IV Cloze (15minutes, 15points)

Paper Two 试卷二

Part I Translation (30 minutes, 20 points)

Section A

Directions: Translate the following passage into Chinese. Write your translation on the ANSWER SHEET.

Engineers are developing a new type of Internet connection that could carry so much data so quickly it might surprise even Net surfers. This technology would open up a route through which data can be sent at speeds thousands of times faster than what's possible now. If all goes to plan, the vast data speeds may soon be available to all. That might help solve the problem of how to handle the enormous growth in Internet traffic. The technology would require some new software and fiber-optic links to the PC, but otherwise no change in basic facilities.

Section B

Directions: Translate the following passage into English. Write your translation on the ANSWER SHEET.

当前我国经济发展迅速,能源供应的压力较大,这跟我国当前经济和社会发展所处的阶段不无关系。但是,不管我们处于哪个发展阶段,如果消耗能源过多,就会因此受到惩罚,面临能源匮乏,环境污染和生态破坏等困境。

Part II Writing (30 minutes, 15 points)

Directions: In this part, you are to write within 30 minutes a composition of no less than 150 words on Self-confidence Is a Key to Success. You could follow the clues suggested by the picture given below. Remember to write the composition clearly on the ANSWERSHEET.

PASSAGE ONE

The other day my son asked me if he could ride up to his elementary school on his bike and meet his friend. He wanted the both of them to ride back to our house so they could play video games and jump on the trampoline. I have to admit, part of me wanted to say no. We can go pick him up or his parents can bring him over here, I thought. But my son is eleven years old now. And after all, I do let him ride his bike to school. But I also drive my daughter to school and I can see him on the way, making sure he is getting there safely.

My husband thinks I am too overprotective. I don't care to let my children walk anywhere without one of us going along. As you pull out of our neighborhood, there is a shopping center across the street. My son always asks if he can ride his bike or walk over to the drugstore by himself. But crossing that street is just too dangerous. The cars fly around the corner like they're driving in a car race. What if he gets hit? What is some teenage bullies are hanging out in the parking lot?

I want so much to give my children the freedom that I enjoyed having when I was growing up but I hesitate to do so because there are dangers around every corner. Too many kidnaps, too many sex offenders. I went online and discovered there are 41 sex offenders in my area alone.

I honestly don't think my mom worried about such things when her children were young.

Growing up in the 1970s was indeed a different time. I never wore a helmet when I rode a bike. We were all over the neighborhood, on our bikes and on foot, coming home for dinner and then back out again until dark. We rode in the back of the truck, didn't wear seatbelts. I walked to and from school every day…

31. What did the author feel reluctant to let her son do?

A. Meet his friend. B. Play video games.

C. Jump on the trampoline. D. Ride his bike on streets.

32. What does the author mean when she says "But my son is eleven years old now"?

A. He is old enough to be given some freedom now.

B. He is a bit too young to go out alone.

C. He has reached the legal age for ridding a bike.

D. He can't protect himself from road hazards.

33. Given her husband's attitude towards bringing up kids, he would most probably _____.

A. drive his son to school to ensure safety.

B. follow his son all the way to school and back

C. give his son more freedom in deciding what to do

D. ask the other boy's parents to bring him over here

34. Which of the following is NOT considered by the author as a potential threat to kids?

A. Teenage bullies. B. The drugstore. C. Child abusers. D. Cars racing by.

35. What can we infer from the last paragraph?

A. The social security back in the 1970s was no better than it is today.

B. Today's children are more obedient to their parents.

C. Children today are more obedient to their parents.

D. Children in the 1970s enjoyed more freedom than those today.

36. What is the author's main purpose in writing this passage?

A. To compare today's social environment with that of the 1970s.

B. To show her concern over the increasing crime rate in her neighborhood.

C. To describe her hesitation as to how much freedom she should give her son.

D. To express her worries about both safety and security in her area.

PASSAGE TWO

About a century ago more people would not have appreciated the study of a foreign language as they do today. Gone are those days when patriotism towards one's own language was a major obstacle to learning foreign languages, a time when most nations were trying to throw their alien rulers out of their countries in their freedom struggles.

Gone are those days when people were proud of their mother or father tongues and considered that their native languages alone will suffice the need to survive. Language skills today have become as important as other business and career skills like IT, vocational or professional skills. Thus learning a foreign language today has become essential for an individual whether it is for careers, growing a business, or even to make an impression.

All that one needs to possess these days is a drive to learn a foreign language and there are all kinds of institutes and courses that teach various foreign languages like French, German, Spanish, and Japanese. Today's world economy has bridged the barriers of race, sex, color and religion and the world had become a smaller place. Today's businesses also demand language skills to expand and grow in other countries. Tens and hundreds of businesses world wide are expanding and growing their business by promoting them in countries other than their countries of origin. The tremendous growth of the Internet has further increased the demand for language skills. In Canada an official rule also says that all commercial establishments must have their websites created both in English and French, the official languages of the country.

Language can also ease race and border barriers. You are more welcome in an alien nation if you know the language of the people there and can converse in their tongue. People in these countries immediately respect you and think you care about their culture as much as they do because in any culture language is the key identity.

37. One of the reasons for not studying a foreign language in the past is _____.

A. it was too difficult　　B. it was not allowed

C. it was seen as disloyalty　　D. it was taught by foreign rulers

38. According to the article, which of the following is true?

A. People's language skills are better than in the past.

B. Foreign language skills are of vital importance.

C. It's easier nowadays to learn a foreign language.

D. People today are not proud of their native language.

39. What does "to make an impression"(Paragraph 1) probably mean?

A. To remember things.　　B. To express ideas.

C. To show respect.　　D. To be liked by others.

40. The world has become smaller because of _____.

A. business expansion　　B. the growth of the Internet

C. a globalized economy　　D. the learning of foreign languages

41. According to the article, the growth of the Internet requires_____.

A. more foreign language skills

B. more bilingual websites

C. better command of English

D. more commercial establishments

42. People in a foreign country will treat you with more respect if you speak their language because _____

A. they think you love their country

B. they think you understand their culture

C. it's easier for them to communicate with you

D. they believe you are a good language learner

PASSAGE THREE

You may have wondered why the supermarkets are all the same. It is not because the companies that them lack imagination. It is because they all aim at persuading people to buy things.

In the supermarket, it takes a while for the mind to get into a shopping mode. This is why the area immediately inside the entrance is known as the “decompression zone”. People need to slow down and look around, even if they are regulars. In sales terms this area is a bit of a loss, so it tends to be used more for promotion.

Immediately inside the first thing shoppers may come to is the fresh fruit and vegetables section. For shoppers, this makes no sense. Fruit and Vegetables can be easily damaged, so they should be bought at the end, not the beginning, of a shopping trip. But what is at work here? It turns out that selecting good fresh food is a way to start shopping, and it makes people feel less guilty about reaching for the unhealthy stuff later on.

Shoppers already know that everyday items, like milk, are invariably placed toward the back of a store to provide more opportunities to tempt customers. But supermarkets know shoppers know this, so they use other tricks, like placing popular items halfway along a section so that people have to walk all along the aisle looking for them. The idea is to boost “dwell time”: the length of time people spend in a store.

Traditionally retailers measure “footfall”, as the number of people entering a store is known, but those numbers say nothing about where people go and how long they spend there. But nowadays, a piece of technology can fill the gap: the mobile phone. Path Intelligence, a British company tracked people’s phones at Gunwharf Quays, a large retail centre in Portsmouth- not by monitoring calls, but by plotting the positions of handsets as they transmit automatically to cellular networks. It found that when dwell time rose 1% sales rose 1.3%.

Such techniques are increasingly popular because of a deepening understanding about how shoppers make choices. People tell market researchers that they make rational decisions about what to buy, considering things like price, selection or convenience. But subconscious forces, involving emotion and memories, are clearly also at work.

43. In Paragraph 2, “decompression zone” is the area meant to _____

A. offer shoppers a place to have a rest

B. prepare shoppers for the mood of buying

C. encourage shoppers to try new products

D. provide shoppers with discount information

44. Putting fruit-and-vegetable section near the entrance takes advantage of shoppers’_____

A. common sense B. shopping habits

C. concerns with time D. shopping psychology

45. Path Intelligence uses a technology to _____.

A. count how many people enter a store

B. measure how long people stay at a store

C. find out what people buy in a store

D. monitor what people say and do in a store

46. What happened at Gunwharf Quays showed that sales_____.

A. was in direct proportion to dwell time

B. was reversely linked to dwell time

C. was affected more by footfall than by dwell time

D. was affected more by dwell time than by football

47. The author argues that shoppers_____.

A. exert more influence on stores than they imagine

B. are more likely to make rational choices than they know

C. tend to make more emotional decisions than they think

D. have more control over what they buy than they assume

48. The best title for the passage is _____.

A. New Technology Boosts Stores' Sales

B. How Shoppers Make Choices in Stores

C. Rational and Irrational Ways of Shopping

D. The Science behind Stores' Arrangements

PASSAGE FOUR

A very important world problem is the increasing number of people who actually inhabit this planet. The limited amount of land and land resources will soon be unable to support the huge population if it continues to grow at its present rate.

So why is this huge increase in population taking place? It is really due to the spread of the knowledge and practice of what is becoming known as "Death Control". You have no doubt heard of the term" Birth Control". "Death Control" is something rather difficult. It recognizes the work of the doctors and scientists who now keep alive people who, not very long ago, would have died of a variety of then incurable diseases. Through a wide variety of technological innovations that include farming methods and the control of deadly diseases, we have found ways to reduce the rate at which we die. However, this success is the very cause of the greatest threat to mankind.

If we examine the amount of land available for this ever-increasing population, we begin to see the problem. If everyone on the planet had an equal share of land, we would each have about 50,000 square metres. This figure seems to be quite encouraging until we examine the amount of usable land we actually have. More than three-fifths of the world's land cannot produce food.

Obviously, with so little land to support us, we should be taking great care not to reduce it further. But we are not! Instead, we are consuming its "capital"- its nonrenewable fossil fuels and other mineral deposits that took millions of years to form but which are now being destroyed in decades. We are also doing the same with other vital resources not usually thought of as being nonrenewable such as fertile soils, groundwater and the millions of other species that share the earth with us.

It is a very common belief that the problems of the population explosion are caused mainly by poor people living in poor countries who do not know enough to limit their reproduction. This is not true. The actual number of people in an area is not as important as the effect they have on nature. Developing countries do have an effect on their environment, but it is the populations of richer countries that have a far greater impact on the earth as a whole.

49. According to the article, what contributes to the population increase?

A. Birth explosion. B. Birth Control

C. Death Control. D. Technological innovations.

50. The word "incurable" in Paragraph 2 means _____

A. common B. epidemic C. untreatable D. unknown

51. There isn't enough land to support human beings because_____

A. there are more seas than land in the world

B. most of the world's land is unusable

C. the world's land has already been taken up

D. the world's land is not distributed equally

52. In Paragraph 4 the writer implies that fertile soils are _____

A. limited B. renewable C. productive D. nonrenewable

53. What does "to limit their reproduction" is the last paragraph mean?

A. To control death. B. To produce less goods.

C. To increase production. D. To practice birth control.

54. What do you think the writer is really concerned about?

A. Long life spans.

B. Population increase.

C. Overuse of resources.

D. The success of "Death Control".

PASSAGE FIVE

All day long, you are affected by large forces. Genes influence your intelligence and willingness to take risks. Social dynamics unconsciously shape your choices. Instantaneous perceptions set off neutral reactions in your head without you even being aware of them.

Over the past few years, scientists have made a series of exciting discoveries about how these deep patterns influence daily life. Nobody has done more to bring these discoveries to public attention than Malcolm Gladwell.

Gladwell's noncontroversial claim is that some people have more opportunities than others. Bill Gates was lucky to go to a great private school with its own computer at the dawn of the information revolution.

Gladwell's book is being received by reviewers as a call to action for the Obama Age. It could lead policy makers to finally reject policies built on the assumption that people are coldly rational profit-maximizing individuals. It could cause them to focus more one policies that foster relationships, social bonds and cultures of achievement.

Yet, I can't help but feel that Glad well and others who share his emphasis are preoccupied with the coolness of the discoveries. They've lost sight of the point at which the influence of social forces ends and the influence of the self-initiating individual begins.

Most successful people begin with two beliefs: the future can be better than the present, and I have the power to make it so. They were often showered by good fortunes, but relied at crucial moments upon achievements of individual will. These people also have an extraordinary ability to consciously focus their attention. Control of attention is the ultimate individual power. People who can do that are not prisoners of the stimuli around them. They can choose from the patterns in the world and lengthen their time horizons.

Gladwell's social determinism overlooks the importance of individual character and individual creativity. And it doesn't fully explain the genuine greatness of humanity's talents. As the classical philosophers understood, examples of individual greatness inspire achievement more reliably than any other form of education.

55. In Paragraph 2, "these deep patterns" refers to all of the following EXCEPT _____

A. genes B. social dynamics C. instantaneous perceptions. D. neutral reactions

56. According to the author, Gladwell's new book Outliers is mainly_____

A. a descriptive study of exceptionally talented individuals

B. about the importance of social arrangements to personal success

C. to discuss why some people have more opportunities than others

D. to explain why Bill Gates is much luckier than others

57. It can be seen from Paragraph 5 that Gladwell's book _____
A. has become quite influential
B. is beginning to influence Obama's policies
C. has received severe criticisms
D. assumes that people just pursue maximum profits
58. According to the author, the most fundamental individual power is _____
A. individual will B. control of attention C. a good character D. exceptional creativity
59. The author believes that individual greatness is more closely related to _____.
A. social forces and genes
B. good luck and education
C. individual character and creativity
D. individual genes and good education
60. This passage is probably a _____
A. book review B. book report C. political essay D. news report

CLOZE

Nuclear energy is an efficient and convenient substitute for conventional forms of energy which were found in special geographical locations. Large amounts of __61__ and effort are required to __62__ these locations. Once the sites are found, men and equipment must be brought to tap and use these sources of energy. However, a large proportion of such sites are found only in far and __63__ places. This increases the difficulties of __64__ these forms of energy. With nuclear energy, such difficulties are not present. Nuclear reactors can easily be built anywhere, and man does not have to compete with the __65__ of nature in order to obtain the energy. For equal amounts of energy, nuclear energy is much more convenient and inexpensive to obtain than conventional sources of energy.

With nuclear energy, the amount of pollution is greatly reduced.__66__ the production of nuclear energy is based on the fission of atoms, pollution is kept to a very low level. The energy produced in the reactors in converted into heat and electricity, and these have __67__ or no pollution at all. Conventional forms of fuel ,__68__ , produce large amounts of pollution.

Production of nuclear energy uses the __69__ of the fission of atoms; thus,__70__ amounts of energy can be obtained from it. The world's reserves of oil, coal and natural gas are running __71__ at a tremendous rate and current estimates predict that __72__ of the 21st century, most of these conventional fuels will be used up. Nuclear energy is the exception __73__ this gloomy prediction. Through splitting and fusing atoms, large amounts of energy can be produced, and __74__ this process can go on an don until all our energy needs are satisfied. The __75__ of nuclear energy as a boundless source of energy is indeed great, and we must harness it whenever possible as conventional fuels will not be around much longer.

61. A. incentive B. capital C. interest D. currency
62. A. point B. recognize C. identify D. label

Section A

Third-hand smoke is tobacco smoke contamination that lingers in carpets, clothes and other materials hours or even days after a cigarette is put out. According to a study, a large number of people, particularly smokers, have no idea that third-hand smoke is a health hazard for people. Of the 1,500 smokers and nonsmokers surveyed, the vast majority agreed that second-hand smoke is dangerous. But when asked whether they agreed with the statement, "Breathing air in a room today where people smoked yesterday can harm your health," only 65% of nonsmokers and 43%of smokers answered "yes."

Section B

有朝一日我身为父母,我会带孩子们去野营。我会让他们体验在篝火上烧烤食物的乐趣。我会告诉他们,在草地上睡觉并不脏。我会让他们知道,天上的星星不止是童话故事的素材,还有实际的用途,例如可以为迷路的人指引方向。这样的户外活动也是一种教育。

Part II Writing

Directions: In this part, you are to write within 30 minnutes a composition of no less than 150 words under the title of "My Opinion About Blog". Your composition should be based on the clues given below. Please remember to write clearly on the COMPOSITION SHEET.

Blog is an on-line diary that one keeps on his frequently updated personal web page. Blog often reflects the personality and experiences of the author.

1. Introductory remarks.
2. My opinion about blog:

For or against, and reasons, OR

What I think blog can do.

Choose the best one and mark the corresponding letter with a single bar across the square brackets on your machine-scoring ANSWER SHEET.*

Questions 31 to 36 are based on the following passage:

Passage One

Loneliness has been linked to depression and other health problems. Now, a study says it can also spread. A friend of a lonely person was 52% more likely to develop feelings of loneliness. And a friend of that friend was 25% more likely to do the same.

Earlier findings showed that happiness, fatness and the ability to stop smoking can also grow like infections within social groups. The findings all come from a major health study in the American town of Framingham, Massachusetts.

The study began in 1948 to investigate the causes of heart disease. Since then, more tests have been added, including measures of loneliness and depression.

The new findings involved more than 5,000 people in the second generation of the Framingham Heart Study. The researchers examined friendship histories and reports of loneliness. The results established a pattern that spread as people reported fewer close friends.

For example, loneliness can affect relationships between next-door neighbors. The loneliness spreads as neighbors who were close friends now spend less time together. The study also found that loneliness spreads more easily among women than men.

Researchers from the University of Chicago. Harvard and the University of California, San Diego, did the study. The findings appeared last month in the Journal of Personality and Social Psychology.

The average person is said to experience feelings of loneliness about 48 days a year. The study found that having a lonely friend can add about 17 days. But every additional friend can decrease loneliness by about 5%, or two and a half days.

Lonely people become less and less trusting of others. This makes it more and more difficult for them to make friends---and likely that society will reject them.

John Cacioppo at the University of Chicago led the study. He says it is important to recognize and deal with loneliness. He says people who have been pushed to the edges of society should receive help to repair their social networks.

The aim should be to aggressively create what he calls a "protective barrier" against loneliness. This barrier, he says, can keep the whole network from coming apart.

31. Besides loneliness, which of the following can also spread among people?

A. Friendship B. Happiness C. Depression D. Smoking

32. The Framingham Heart Study starting from 1948_____.

A. expanded its research topics

B. involved 5,000 patients of depression

C. identified loneliness as one key factor for heart disease

D. examined the relationship between loneliness and depression

33. Which of the following is true about the spread of loneliness?

A. It leads to a gradual loss of friends.

B. It is a common phenomenon among women.

C. It is often found in the neighborhood.

D. It ruins the relationships between close friends.

34. Having a lonely friend, you are more likely to _____.

Passage Two

California has a new program called the Digital Textbook Initiative. "Starting this fall with high school math and science, we will be the first state in the nation to provide schools with a state-approved list of digital textbooks." That was Governor Arnold Schwarzenegger in June. talking about his effort to get schools to use materials available free online. He listed reasons why he thinks digital textbooks make sense.

California approves traditional textbooks in six-year cycles. Digital ones can offer the latest information. They lighten the load of school bags. They save paper and tress, and make learning more fun and interactive. And above all, he said they help schools with their finances.

The state has had to make severe cuts in school spending because of deep financial problems. More than six million students attend California public schools.

Earlier this year, California invited content developers to offer digital math and science materials for high schools. These had to meet at least 90% of the state's learning requirements. Specially trained teachers examined 16 textbooks and approved ten of them.

Six of the ten were published by the CK12 Foundation, a nonprofit group that had been developing digital science and math books for about two years. The foundation paid teachers and other education professionals to write and edit them. The money came from a group financed by the Khosla Family.

California cannot require schools to use the digital textbooks. Individual school districts will have to decide for themselves.

Susan Martimo, a California Department of Education official, says she does not expect widespread use right away. He best guess is that some schools with a lot of technology will be the first to use them, but only in addition to their traditional books.

School administrators point out that the texts may be free online, but students need a way to access them. Not everyone has a computer or electronic reader. Schools could print out copies, but that would not help the environment. Also, there is the cost to train teachers to use digital textbooks effectively.

37. The Digital Textbook Initiative _____.

A. will probably take effect in six years

B. covers all the high school subjects

C. has been approved by all states

D. is advocated by California state governor

38. The main reason for promoting digital textbooks is to _____.

A. help save money

B. benefit the environment

C. provide interesting materials

D. reduce students' heavy burden

39. The digital textbooks were approved by _____.

A. trained teachers　　B. content developers

C. Khosla Family　　D. Ck12 Foundation

40. What is true of CK12Foundation?

A. It produced 16 digital textbooks.

B. It paid teachers to write digital textbooks.

C. It is financed by California state government.

D. It makes money through developing digital textbooks.

41. According to Susan Martimo, digital textbooks _____.

A. are not likely to have a widespread use

B. will soon replace traditional ones

C. will first be adopted by well-equipped schools

D. are certain to be approved by school districts

42. It can be inferred from the last paragraph that _____.

A. schools are reluctant to print out copies

B. the use of digital textbooks is not really free

C. students need to pay for computers

D. training teachers to use the textbooks is not efficient

Passage Three

Doctors in Britain are warning of an obesity time bomb, when children who are already overweight grow up. So, what should we do? Exercise more? Eat less? Or both? The government feels it has to take responsibility for this expanding problem.

The cheerful Mr. Pickwick, the hero of the novel by Charles Dickens, is seen in illustrations as someone who is plump (胖乎乎的) ---and happy. In 18th century paintings beauty is equated with rounded bodies and soft curves. But nowadays being overweight is seen as indicating neither a cheerful character nor beauty but an increased risk of heart disease and stroke.

So what do you do? Diet? Not according to England's chief medical officer, Sir Liam Donaldson. He says that physical activity is the key for reducing the risks of obesity cancer and heart disease. And the Health Secretary John Reid ever said that being inactive is as serious a risk factor in heart disease as smoking.

So, having bought some cross trainers, how much exercise should you do? According to Sir Liam Donaldson, at least 30 minutes of moderate activity five days a week. Is going to the gym the answer? Luckily for those who find treadmills (跑步机) tedious , the Health Development Agency believes that physical activity that fits into people's live may be more effective. They suggest taking the stairs rather than the lift. Walking up escalators, playing active games with your children, dancing or gardening. And according to a sports psychologist , Professor Biddle, gyms 'are not making the nation fit', and may even cause harm .

There's new scientific evidence that too much exercise may actually be bad for you. Scientists at the University of Ulster have found that unaccustomed exercise releases dangerous free radicals that can adversely affect normal function in unfit people. The only people who should push their bodies to that level of exercise on a regular basis are trained athletes.

So, should we forget about gyms and follow some experts' advice to increase exercise in our daily life? After all, getting off the bus a stop early and walking the rest of the way can't do any harm! One final thought. How come past generations lacked gym facilities but were leaner and fitter than people today?

43. This passage is mainly about _____.

A. how to keep fit and avoid fatness

B. increased risks for overweight people

C. the dangers of exercise in the gym

D. the benefit of a balanced diet

44. What does "this expanding problem" (Para.1) refer to ?

A. The slow growing up of overweight children.

B. The obesity time bomb warned of by doctors.

C. Too little exercise and too much diet.

D. Neglect of the health issue by the government.

45. Why does the author mention Mr. Pickwick in Charles Dickens' novel?

A. He was portrayed in an 18th century painting.

B. He is the hero of a world famous novel.

C. He suffered from heart disease and stroke.

D. He is the image of being plump and happy.

46. According to Sir Liam Donaldson, what is the best way to avoid obesity?

A. Being on diet. B. Giving up smoking .

C. Being as inactive as possible. D. Doing physical activities.

47. Which of the following is NOT recommended by the Health Development Agency?

A. Walking up escalators, dancing or gardening.

B. Going to the gym to walk on treadmills.

C. Taking the stairs rather than the lift.

D. Playing active games with your children.

48. It can be inferred from the last paragraph that

A. too much exercise may actually be bad for health

B. experts' advice cannot be always followed

C. past generations longed for gym facilities we have today

D. moderate daily-life exercise can make us leaner and fitter

Passage Four

A metaphor is a poetic device that deals with comparison. IT compares similar qualities of two dissimilar objects. With a simple metaphor, one object becomes the other: Love is a rose. Although this does not sound like a particularly rich image, a metaphor can communicate so much about a particular image that poets use them more than any other type of figurative language. The reason for this is that poets compose their poetry to express what they are experiencing emotionally at that moment. Consequently, what the poet imagines love to be may or may not be our perception of love. Therefore, the poet's job is to enable us to experience it, to feel it the same way as the poet does.

Let's analyze this remarkably unsophisticated metaphor concerning love and the rose to see what it offers. Because the poet uses a comparison with a rose, first we must examine the characteristics of that flower. A rose is spectacular in its beauty, its petals (花瓣) are nicely soft, and its smell is pleasing. It's possible to say that a rose is actually a feast to the senses of sight, touch, and smell. The rose's appearance seems to border on perfection, each petal seemingly symmetrical in form. Isn't this the way one's love should be? A loved one should be a delight to one's senses and seem perfect. However, there is another dimension added to the comparison by using a rose. Roses have thorns. The poet wants to convey the idea that roses can be tricky. So can love, the metaphor tells us. When one reaches out with absolute trust to touch the object of his or her affection, ouch, a thorn can cause great harm! "Be careful," the metaphor warns: Love is a feast to the senses, but it can overwhelm us, and it can also hurt us and cause acute suffering. This is the poet's perception of love--an admonition (劝诫). What is the point? Just this: It took almost 14 sentences to clarify what a simple metaphor communicates in only four words! That is the artistry and the joy of the simple metaphor.

49. According to the passage, what is a metaphor?

A. A comparison between two different objects with similar features.

B. A contrast between two different things to create a vivid image.

C. A description of two similar objects in a poetic way.

D. A literary device specially employed in poetry writing.

50. The main idea of this passage is that _____.

A. rose is a good image in poetry

B. love is sweet and pleasing

C. metaphor is ambiguous

D. metaphor is great poetic device

51. It can be inferred from the passage that a metaphor is _____.

A. difficult to understand　　B. rich in meaning

C. not precise enough　　D. like a flower

52. As is meant by the author, thorns of a rose _____.

A. Protect the rose from harm

B. Symbolize reduced love

C. Add a new element to the image of love

D. Represent objects of one's affection

53. The meaning of the love-is –a-rose metaphor is that _____.

A. love is a true joy

B. true love comes once in a lifetime

C. love does not last long

D. love is both good and bad experiences

54. According to the passage, poetry is intended to _____.

A. release anger　　B. entertain the readers

C. express poets' ideas　　D. reward the senses

Passage Five

Some 23 million additional U.S. residents are expected to become more regular users of the U.S. health care system in the next several years, thanks to the passage of health care reform. Digitizing medical data has been promoted as one way to help the already burdened system manage the surge in patients. But putting people's health information in databases and online is going to do more than simply reduce redundancies. It is already shifting the very way we seek and receive health care.

"The social dynamics of care are changing," says John Gomez, vice president of Eclipsys, a medical information technology company. Most patients might not yet e willing to share their latest CT scan images over Facebook, he notes, but many parents post their babies' ultrasound images, and countless patients nowadays use social networking sites to share information about conditions, treatments and doctors.

With greater access to individualized health information—whether that is through a formal electronic medical record, a self-created personal health record or a quick instant-messaging session with a physician-the traditional roles of doctors and patients are undergoing a rapid transition.

"For as long as we've known, health care has been 'I go to the physician, and they tell me what to do, and I do it,'" says Nitu Kashyap, a physician and research fellow at the Yale Center for Medical Informatics. Soon more patients will be arriving at a hospital or doctor's office having reviewed their own record, latest test results and recommended articles about their health concerns. And even more individuals will be able to skip that visit altogether, instead sending a text message or e-mail to their care provider or consulting a personal health record or smart-phone application to answer their questions.

These changes will be strengthened by the nationwide shift to electronic medical records, which has already begun. Although the majority of U.S. hospitals and doctors' offices are still struggling to start the changeover, many patients already have electronic medical records—and some even have partial access to them. The My Chart program, in use at Cleveland Clinic , the University of Texas Southwestern Medical Center at Dallas and other facilities, is a Web portal (门户) through which patients can see basic medical information as well as some test results.

Medical data is getting a new digital life, and it is jump-starting a "fundamental change in how care is provided," Gomez says.

55. Which of the following is the best title for this passage?
A. The Future of Your Medical Data.
B. Challenges Against Doctors and Hospitals.
C. Benefits of the U.S. Health Care Reform.
D. How to Access and Share Your Health Information.

56. Putting patient information in databases and online _____.
A. enable more Americans to join the health care system.
B. contributes to the passage of health care reform
C. increases the burden of the U.S. health care system
D. changes how people seek and receive health care

57. According to John Gomez, many patients use social networking sites to _____.
A. change their social interactions
B. post their latest CT scan images
C. share information about their health care
D. show their babies' recent pictures

58. Which of the following is NOT changing the traditional roles of doctors and patients?
A. A formal electronic medical record

B. An easier access to information online

C. A self-created to information online

D. A quick instant-messaging session with a doctor

59. According to Nitu Kashyap, more patients in the future will_____.

A. refuse to follow their doctors' advice

B. be more dependent on their doctors

C. leave out their visit to doctors' offices and hospitals

D. have their health conditions examined through e-mail

60. It is stated in the passage that _____

A. nationwide digitalization of medical data will begin soon

B. most of U.S. hospitals and doctors are against the shift

C. patients are worried about the security of their health information

D. patients are starting to make use of their electronic medical records.

Paper Two 试卷二

Part I Translation (30 minutes, 20 points)

Section A

Directions: Translate the following passage into Chinese. Write your translation on the ANSWER SHEET.

An ecosystem is a group of animals and plants living in a specific region and interacting with one another and with their physical environment. Ecosystems include physical and chemical components, such as soils, water, and nutrients that support the organisms living there. These organisms may range from large animals to microscopic bacteria. Ecosystems also can be thought of as the interactions among all organisms in a given area; for instance, one species may serve as food for another. People are part of the ecosystems where they live and work. Human activities can harm or destroy local ecosystems unless actions such as land development for housing or businesses are carefully planned to conserve and sustain the ecology of the area.

2. What do you learn from it?

第二稿

英国史学家卡莱尔经过多年的伏案,写成了“法国大革命史》的全部文稿。那时候没有电脑,一切都得用手来完成,而且难得有“备份”。 卡莱尔写完后的第一件事,就是将它交给最信任的好友米尔去完善。

然而就在第二天,手稿被米尔家的女佣当作废纸丢进了火炉！而且,更糟糕的是,为了保持书房的整洁,卡莱尔每写完一章,随手把原来的笔记、草稿撕碎。可以想见卡莱尔当时的心情,但他很快就平静下来,反而安慰伤心的米尔：“没关系,就当我作文交给老师批阅,老师说‘这篇不行,重写一次吧,你可以写得更好！”

卡莱尔再起炉灶,重写这部巨著。如今人们读到的《法国大革命史》,就是他的第二稿。这一稿的质量,无论文字上还是内涵上,都达到了卡莱尔写作的巅峰。

Part III　Reading Comprehension (45 minutes, 30 points)

Directions:

There are 5 passages in this part. Each passage is followed by 6 questions or unfinished statements. For each of them there are 4 choices marked A, B, C and D. Choose the best one and mark the corresponding letter with a single bar across the square brackets on your machine-scoring ANSWER SHEET.

Passage One

Until last spring, Nia Parker and the other kids in her neighborhood commuted to school on Bus 59. But as fuel prices, the school district needed to find a way to cut its transportation costs. So the school's busing company redrew its route map, eliminating Nia's bus altogether. Now Nia and her neighbors travel the half mile to school via a "walking school bus"—a group of kids, supervised by an adult or two, who make the walk together.

Like the rest of us, school districts are feeling pinched by rising fuel costs—and finding new ways to adapt. The price of diesel fuel has gone up 34 percent in the past two years. For the typical American school district, bus bills total 5 percent of the budget. As administrators look to trim, busing is an inviting target, since it doesn't affect classroom instruction (or test scores). More than one third of American school administrators have eliminated bus stops or routes in order to stay within budget.

Many parents are delighted to see their kids walking to school, partly because many did so themselves: according to a 1969 survey, nearly half of school kids walked or biked to school, compared with only 16 percent in 2001. Modern parents have been unwilling to let kids walk to school for fear of traffic, crime or simple bullying, but with organized adult supervision, those concerns have diminished.

Schools and busing companies are finding other ways to save. In rural areas where busing is a must, some schools have even chosen four-day school weeks. Busing companies instruct drivers to eliminate extra stops from routes and to turn off the engine while idling. They are also using computer software to determine the most fuel-efficient routes, which aren't always the shortest ones.

There could be downsides, however, to the busing cutbacks. If every formerly bused student begins walking to school, it's an environmental win—but if too many of their parents decide to drive them instead, the overall carbon footprint can grow. Replacing buses with many more parent-driven cars can also increase safety risks: A 2002 report concluded students are 13 times safer on a school bus than in a passenger car, since buses have fewer accidents and withstand them better due to their size. And some students complain about the long morning hikes, particularly when the route contains a really big hill.

31. The "walking school bus"_____.

A. does not consume fuel　　B. aims to keep children fit

C. seldom causes traffic jams　　D. is popular with school kids

32. In America the responsibility for busing kids to school lies with _____.

A. individual schools　　B. school districts

C. teachers　　D. parents

33. As regards walking to school, modem parents seem much concerned with the _____.

A. time spent on the way　　B. changes in the route

C. kids' physical strength　　D. safety of their children

34. To save money, some schools choose to _____.

A. take the shortest routes　　B. shorten the school week

C. give drivers better training　　D. use fuel-efficient buses

35. Busing cutbacks may eventually lead to _____.

A. fiercer competition among bus companies

B. more students taking public transportation

C. an increase in carbon dioxide emissions

D. a decrease in the safety of school buses

36. Which of the following best describes the author's attitude towards busing cutbacks?

A. Favorable. B. Critical.

C. Objective. D. Indifferent.

Passage Two

People are living longer than ever, but for some reason, women are living longer than men. A baby boy born in the United States in 2003 can expect to live to be about 73, a baby girl, about 79. This is indeed a wide gap, and no one really knows why it exists. The greater longevity (长寿) of women, however, has been known for centuries. It was, for example, described in the seventeenth century. However, the difference was smaller then—the gap is growing.

A number of reasons have been proposed to account for the differences. The gap is greatest in industrialized societies, so it has been suggested that women are less susceptible to work strains that may raise the risk of heart disease and alcoholism. Sociologists also tell us that women are encouraged to be less adventurous than men (and this may be why they are more careful drivers, involved in fewer accidents).

Even smoking has been implicated in the age discrepancy. It was once suggested that working women are more likely to smoke and as more women entered the work force, the age gap would begin to close, because smoking is related to earlier deaths. Now, however, we see more women smoking and they still tend to live longer although their lung cancer rate is climbing sharply.

One puzzling aspect of the problem is that women do not appear to be as healthy as men. That is, they report far more illnesses. But when a man reports an illness, it is more likely to be serious.

Some researchers have suggested that men may die earlier because their health is more strongly related to their emotions. For example, men tend to die sooner after losing a spouse than women do. Men even seem to be more weakened by loss of a job. (Both of these are linked with a marked decrease in the effectiveness of the immune system.) Among men, death follows retirement with an alarming promptness.

Perhaps we are searching for the answers too close to the surface of the problem. Perhaps the answers lie deeper in our biological heritage. After all, the phenomenon is not isolated to humans. Females have the edge among virtually all mammalian (哺乳动物的) species, in that they generally live longer. Furthermore, in many of these species the differences begin at the moment of conception; there are more male miscarriages (流产). In humans, after birth, more baby boys than baby girls die.

37. What can we learn from the first two paragraphs?

A. Men's lifespan remains almost unchanged.

B. Researchers have found the causes of the age gap.

C. The more advanced a society, the greater the age gap.

D. The age gap was noticed only recently.

38. As is suggested in Paragraph 2, the two factors relevant to women's longer lifespan are_____.

A. diseases and road accidents

B. industrialization and work strains

C. their immunity to heart disease and refusal of alcohol

D. their endurance of work strains and reluctance for adventure

39. According to Paragraph 3, which of the following statements is true?

A. The great number of male smokers contributes to the age gap.

B. The growing number of smoking women will narrow the age gap.

C. Female workers are more likely to smoke than male workers.

D. Smoking does not seem to affect women's longevity.

40. Which of the following phenomena makes researchers puzzled?

A. Men's health is more closely related to their emotions.

B. Though more liable to illnesses, women still live longer.

C. Men show worse symptoms than women when they fall ill.

D. Quite a number of men die soon after their retirement.

41. The word "edge" in Paragraph 6 means "_____".

A. margin B. side

C. advantage D. quality

42. What is the main idea of the passage?

A. The greater longevity of women remains a mystery.

B. That women are healthier than men well explains their longevity.

C. People are living longer as a result of industrialization.

D. Women are less emotionally affected by difficulties in life.

Passage Three

Many are aware of the tremendous waste of energy in our environment, but fail to take advantage of straightforward opportunities to conserve that energy. For example, everyone knows that lights should be switched off when no one is in an office. Similarly, when employees are not using a meeting room, there is no need to regulate temperature.

Fortunately, one need not rely on human intervention to conserve energy. With the help of smart sensing and network technology, energy conservation processes such as turning off lights and adjusting temperature can be readily automated. Ultimately, this technology will enable consumers and plant managers to better identify wasteful energy use and institute procedures that lead to smarter and more efficient homes, buildings and industrial plants.

Until now, wires and cables for power and connectivity have limited the widespread adoption of sensor(传感器) networks by making them difficult and expensive to install and maintain. Battery-powered wireless networks can simplify installation and reduce cost. But their high power consumption and the corresponding need for regular battery replacement has made wireless networks difficult and costly to maintain. Nobody wants to replace hundreds or thousands of window sensor batteries in a large building on a regular basis.

The promise of wireless sensor networks can only be fully realized when the wiring for both the data communication and the power supply is eliminated. Doing so requires a true battery-free wireless solution, one that can utilize energy harvested directly from the environment. To facilitate the widespread deployment of wireless sensor networks, Green Peak has developed an ultra-low-power communication technology that can utilize environmental energy sources such as light, motion and vibration. This technology, employing on-board power management circuits and computer software to monitor energy harvesters and make the best use of harvested energy, enables sensors to operate reliably in a battery-free environment.

Wireless sensor networks deployed in our offices and homes will have an enormous impact on our daily lives, helping to build a smarter world in which energy is recycled and fully utilized. These wireless platforms, equipped with advanced sensing capability, will enable us to better control our lives, homes and environment, creating a truly connected world that enables people worldwide to live in a more comfortable safer, and cleaner environment.

43. By“human intervention”(Paragraph 2), the author refers to_____.

A. the reduction of great energy waste in the environment

B. the grasping of straightforward opportunities available

C. acts like turning off lights when no one is in the room

D. the adoption of smart sensing and network technology

44. Batteries are not an ideal energy source for sensor networks because they_____.

A. have to be replaced from time to time

B. contain metals that pollute the environment

C. require automatic recharging

D. are difficult and costly to maintain

45. Battery—free wireless sensor networks are made possible by the fact that_____.

A. there is energy in the environment to be utilized

B. the cost of using them has been drastically reduced

C. modern data communication consumes little energy

D. their maintenance has been greatly simplified

46. According to the passage, Green Peak _____.

A. is the first company to install wireless sensor networks

B. promotes the application of wireless sensor networks

C. supplies batteries operating on harvested energy

D. benefits handsomely from communication technology

47. The focus of Paragraph 4 is on the_____.

A. replacement of batteries in harvesters

B. monitoring of energy harvested from the environment

C. elimination of batteries in sensor networks

D. impact of sensor networks on power supply

48. Wireless sensor networks promise to_____.

A. bring businesses high profits

B. further develop the sensing technology

C. turn motion into a major source of energy

D. improve the daily lives of people worldwide

Passage Four

If you haven’t heard or seen anything about Road Rage in the last few months, you’ve probably been avoiding the media. There have been countless stories about this new and scary phenomenon, considered a type of aggressive driving. You have most likely encountered aggressive driving and/or Road Rage recently if you drive at all.

While drunk driving remains a critical problem, the facts about aggressive driving are surely as disturbing. For instance, according to the national highway transportation safety association, 41,907 people died on the highway last year. Of those fatalities, the agency estimates that about two-thirds were caused at least in part by aggressive driving behavior.

Why is this phenomenon occurring more than ever now and why is it something that seemed almost nonexistent a few short years ago? Experts have several theories and all are probably partially correct. One suggestion is sheer overcrowding. In the last decade, the number of cars on the roads has increased by more than 11percent, and the number of miles driven has increased by 35 percent. However, the number of new road miles has only increased by 1 percent. That means more cars in the same amount of activities into the day, stress levels have never been higher. Stress creates anxiety, which leads to short tempers. These factors, when combined in certain situations, can spell Road Rage.

You may think you are the last person who would drive aggressively, but you might be surprised. For instance, have you ever yelled out loud at a slower driver, sounded the horn long and hard at another car or sped up to keep another driver from passing? If you recognize yourself in any of these situations, watch out!

Whether you are getting angry at other drivers, or another drivers in visibly upset with you, there are thing you can do to avoid any major confrontation. If you are susceptible to Road Rage, the key is to discharge your emotion in a healthy way. If you are the target of another driver's rage, do everything possible to get away from the other driver safely, including avoiding eye contact and getting out of their way.

49. The first sentence in Paragraph 1 implies that_____.

A. people not interested in the media know little about recent happenings

B. Road Rage has received much media coverage in the last few months

C. one may be raged by media reports and wants to avoid them

D. the media coined the term "Road Rage" only a few months ago

50. According to the National Highway Transportation Safety Association, last year_____.

A. drunk driving remained the No.1 killer on the highways

B. more people were killed by aggressive driving than by drunk driving

C. two thirds of drivers were killed by aggressive driving

D. 41,907 people feel victim to aggressive driving

51. Which of the following is NOT mentioned as a cause of aggressive driving?

A. Increasing number of cars.

B. Drivers' stress and anxiety.

C. Overcrowded roads.

D. Rush hour traffic.

52. The word "spell" in Paragraph 3 means "_____."

A. speak　　B. cause

C. describe　　D. spare

53. Which of the following characterizes aggressive driving?

A. Talking while driving.　　B. Driving fast.

C. Yelling at another driver.　　D. Sounding the horn when passing.

54. The last paragraph is intended to _____.

A. tell people how to cope with Road Rage

B. inform people how aggressive drivers could be

C. tell people how to control themselves when angry

D. warn people against eye contact with another driver

Passage Five

In the early 20th century, a horse named Clever Hans was believed capable of counting and other impressive mental tasks. After years of great performance, psychologists discovered that though Hans was certainly clever, he was not clever in the way everyone expected .The horse was cleverly picking up on tiny, unintentional bodily an facial signals given out not only by his trainer, but also by the audience. Aware of the "Clever Hans" effect, Lisa Lit at the University of California and her colleagues wondered whether the beliefs of professional dog handlers might similarly affect the outcomes of searches for drugs and explosives. Remarkably, Dr Lit found, they do.

Dr Lit asked 18 professional dog handlers and their dogs to complete brief searches. Before the searches, the handles were informed that some of the search areas might contain up to three target scents, and also that in two cases those scents would be marked by pieces of red paper. What the handlers were not told was that none of the search areas contained scents of either drugs or explosives. Any "detections" made by the teams thus had to be false.

The findings reveal that of 144 searches, only 21 were clean (no alerts). All the others raised one alert or more. In total, the teams raised 225 alerts. While the sheer number of false alerts Dr Lit as fascinating, it was of greatest interest.

When handlers could see a red piece of paper, allegedly marking a location of interest, they were much more likely to say that their gods signaled an alert. The human handlers were not only distracted on almost every occasion by the stimulus aimed at them, but also transmitted that distraction to their animals-who responded accordingly. To mix metaphors, the dogs were crying "wolf" at the unconscious signal of their handlers.

How much that matters in the real world is unclear. But it might. If a handler, for example, unconsciously "profiled" people being sniffed by a drug or explosive-detecting dog at an airport, false positives could abound. That is not only bad for innocent travelers, but might distract the team from catching the guilty.

55. What did psychologists find out about Clever Hans?

A. He was as clever as people claimed.

B. He was really good at counting.

C. He could understand human language.

D. He merely responded to human signals.

56. Lisa Lit and her colleagues_____.

A. questioned the "Clever Hans" effect

B. discovered the "Clever Hans" effect

C. confirmed the "Clever Hans" effect

D. rejected the "Clever Hans" effect

57. The dog handlers learned before the searches that _____.

A. each search area contained three target scents

B. there was actually no target scent in the search area

C. some target scents may be labeled with a special mark

D. their dogs were expects to find the scents of red paper

58. What was most significant about the experiment, according to Dr. Lit?

A. The location of the false alerts.

B. The regularity of the false alerts.

C. The number of the false alerts.

D. The timing of the false alerts.

59. It can be concluded from the experiment that _____.

A. dog handlers are more likely to be distracted than their dogs

B. dogs may act I response to their handlers' bodily signals

C. the cooperation between dogs and their handlers is key to success

D. well-trained dogs can better understand their handlers' signals

60. The author thinks that Dr. Lit's findings _____.

A. should raise our concern in real life

B. may not be useful in real situations
C. should be backed up by further evidence
D. will be widely applied in the near future

Part IV Cloze (15 minutes, 15 points)

In this part, there is a passage with 15 blanks. For each blank there are 4 choices marked A, B, C and D. Choose the best answer for each blank and mark the corresponding letter with a single bar across the square brackets on your machine-scoring ANSWER SHEET.

Zoos have become an important site for the preservation and protection of wildlife resources, _61__those species that are endangered. __62___, many zoos displayed live animals for public entertainment. Presently some zoos have become scientific and educational __63___that have contributed to the understanding and conservation of wild animal populations. __64___ the challenges facing modern zoos are the cost of upgrading old facilities, the struggle to obtain __65___operating funds, and the need to attract more visitors to new and entertaining exhibits.

Many _66__ zoos in American cities have undergone renovation（翻新）during the last decades of the twentieth century. Among the recent trends in zoo _ 67___ is the construction of new enclosures that resemble natural habitats (栖 息 地).The replacement of traditional steel bars and concrete floors __68__appropriately designed surroundings improves visitor appreciation of the animals. Such renovations may _69___ stress on animals and allow them to interact with one another more naturally.

Several major zoos conduct captive propagation programs. A captive propagation program includes the breeding of __70__ zoo or wild animals to obtain offspring. Usually for release to__71___or for transfer to other zoos. Captive breeding is one method of __72___ some species from extinction.

Zoos have expanded and improved public education programs also, with education departments that develop programs__73___ zoo exhibits. Public activities include in-school programs, zoo tours, special events, and websites. The Zoological Society of New York, for example, conducted a major project with a Western African government to monitor an elephant herd_ 74__ it moved throughout its range.

The importance of zoos will increase as natural habitats are diminishing. Through their efforts __75___ conservation, education, and environmental advocacy, zoos will continue to play a critical role in wildlife preservation throughout the world.

Paper Two 试卷二 (60 minutes)

Part I Translation (30 minutes, 20 points)

Section A

Directions:

Translate the following passage into Chinese. Write your translation on the ANSWER SHEET.

Over the years, we tend to think that nuclear technologies and the necessary know-how to ensure nuclear safety have been developed to a level that possibilities for any major nuclear accidents are almost non-existent and if it does happen, it will be controlled in the capable hands of nuclear engineers. However, reality has proved again that you just can't be too careful to handle nuclear energy. We don't know for sure yet what will be left behind Japan's nuclear crisis, but it will be certain that it is time to re-examine our nuclear practices and many more efforts need to be made to ensure nuclear safety in the future.

Part I Dialogue Communication (10minutes, 10points, 1 for each)

Section A Dialogue Completion

Directions: In this section, you will read 2 short incomplete dialogues between two speakers, each followed by 4 choices marked A.B.C and D Choose the answer that best suits the situation to complete the dialogue by marking the corresponding letter with a single bar across the square brackets on your machine-scoring ANSWER SHRET.

1. A:Frank, where are the cookies? Don't tell me you ate them all!
   B:_____They were so good
   A.Yes, forget it　　B.Yes, I couldn't help it
   C.No, I'm sorry　　D.No, don't be mad

2. A: The train is delayed again
   B:_____- The long do we have to wait?
   A,What a pity　　B,How annoying!　　C,I"m sorry to hear　　D,So far so good

3.A: When Lise saw me at the mall, she didn't even say hello to me
   B:I can't understand why _____.I thought you were good friends.
   A,you greeted her first　　B,she was also there at the time
   C,she gave you the cold shoulder　　D.you should have cared

4,A: I used to make delicious pies ,but this one tastes terrible
   B: I think you're really _____.
   A,out of date　　B.out of touch　　C,out to hand　　D ,out to practice

5.A:Dr.Smith,what's wrong with my father?
   A,he's in pretty good shape　　B,don't ask me suck a question
   C,I have no idea　　D,I have nothing to say for the moment

Section B Dialogue Comprehension

Directions： In this section, you will read 2 short conversations between a man and a woman. At the end of each conversation there is a question followed by 4 choices marked A.B.C.and D. Choose the best answer to the question from the 4 choices by marking the corresponding letter with a single bar across the square brackets on your machine-scoring ANSWER SHEET.

6.Woman:BoB.if you weed the garden ,I"ll do the dishes .
Man;It's a deal
Question: What dose the man mean?
   A,He agrees to the proposal　　B,He rejects the idea
   C,He thinks it's unfair　　D,He stands to gain

7. Woman:Can I go skiing with you and your friends this weekend ?
   Man;The more ,the merrier
   Question: What does the man mean ?
   A,There are already too many people　　B.He can't promise the woman now
   C,The woman is welcome to join them　　D,The woman can come next time

8,man:This suitcase cose me 200 dollars
   Woman; 200 dollars for a piece of junk like that ?That's a rip-off
   Question:What dose the woman mean
   A,It's a bit expensive　　B. It's a real bargain
   C,It's not worth the price　　D,It's unexpected

9,Woman:The house seems in a bad shape
Man:Yes, we've decided to rebuild it from scratch
Question:What would the man probably do to the house?
A,He would scratch the paint off its surface
B,He would tear it down first
C,He would make some repairs
D,He would rebuild it by himself

10,Ted:I ate four hamburgers ,Mom
Mother:Well, you've made a pig of yourself
Question:What do we learn from the conversation?
A,Pigs love hamburgers too B.The looks overweight
C,T he hamburgers were delicious D,Ted ate too many hamburgers

Part II Vocabulary (10 minutes, 10 points)

Section A

Directions: In this section there are 10 sequences, each with one word or phrase underlined. Choose the one from the 4 choices marked A.B.C and D that best keeps the meaning of the sentences. Then mark the corresponding letter with a single bar across the square brackets on your machine-scoring ANSWER SHEET.

11,In his closing remarks,the chairman express his thanks to all those who had contributed to the success of the conference.
A,comments B,speech C,criticism D ,lecture

A. dissolution B. decay

C. decline D. depression

30. A transplant operation is successful only if doctors can prevent the body from rejecting the organ.

A. borrowed B. strange

C. novel D. foreign

Part III Reading Comprehension (45 minutes,30 points,1 for each)

Directions: There are 5 passages in this part. Each passage is followed by 6questions or unfinished statements. For each of them there are 4 choices marked A.B.C and D. Choose the best one and mark the corresponding letter with a single bar across the square brackets on your machine –scoring ANSWER SHEET.

Passage One

A 10-year-old boy decided to study judo (柔道) despite the fact that he had lost his left arm in a terrible car accident .The boy began lessons with an old Japanese judo master, and he was doing well. But he couldn't understand why, after three months of training, the master had taught him only one move.

"Sir," the boy finally saiD."shouldn't I be learning more moves?"

"This is the only move you know, but this is the only move you'll ever need to know," the master replied.

Not quite understanding, but believing in his teacher, the boy kept training.

Several months later ,the master took the boy to his first tournament (锦标赛).

Surprising himself, the boy easily won his first two matches. The third match proved to be more difficult, but after some time, his opponent became impatient and charged; the boy was now in the finals.

This time, his opponent was bigger, stronger, and more experienced .For a while, the boy appeared to be overmatched. Concerned that the boy might get hurt, the referee called a time-out.

He was about to stop the match when the judo master intervened.

"No," the judo master insisteD."Let him continue."

Soon after the match resumeD.his opponent made a critical mistake: he dropped his guard .Instantly, the boy used his move to pin him. The boy had won the match and the tournament .He was the champion.

On the way home, the boy and his judo master reviewed every move in each and every match .Then the boy summoned the courage to ask what was really on his mind.

"Sir, how did I win the tournament with only one move?"

"You won for two reasons," the master answered.

"First, you've almost mastered one of the most difficult throws in all of judo. SeconD.the only known defense for that move is for your opponent to grab your left arm."

31. Why did the boy want to learn judo?

A. He wanted to get over the accident.

B. He wanted to make up for his disability.

C. He wanted to exercise his right arm.

D. The reason was not mentioned in the passage.

32. When a referee calls a "time-out", .

A. the time has run out B. the game stops for a short time

C. either side can claim victory D. the game ends in a tie

33. Why did the master insist on continuing the match?

A. He didn't want to give the opponent an advantage.
B. The boy was confident of winning.
C. He had confidence in the boy's skill.
D. All he cared about was winning the final.

34. What probably caused the defeat of the boy's opponent in the final?
A. Over-confidence. B. Impatience.
C. Inexperience. D. Exhaustion.

35. Why did the master teach the boy only that one move?
A. The boy could not do other moves with only one arm.
B. It was the only move the master knew well.
C. It was the move his opponent would not be good at.
D. His opponent would be helpless once he made that move.

36. What does the passage mainly tell us?
A. One can turn a weakness into an advantage.
B. It is very difficult to have a good teacher.
C. Even a disabled person can win a match.
D. Practice makes perfect.

Passage Two

My five-year-old daughter knew exactly what she wanted for Christmas of 1977, and told me so. Yes, she still would like the pink-and-green plastic umbrellA.books, long nightgown, slippers—fine, But really, there was only one thing that mattered; a Barbie Townhouse, with all the accessories.

This was a surprise. Rebecca was not a Barbie girl, preferred stuffed animals to dolls, and wasn't drawn to play in a structured environment. Always a make-up-the-rules, design-my-own-worle, do-it-my-way kid. Maybe, I thought, the point wasn't Barbie but the house, which she could claim for herself, since we'd already moved five times during her brief life.

Next day, I stopped at the mall. The huge Barbie Townhouse box was there: "3 Floors of High-Styled Fun! Elevator Can Stop on ALL Floors!" Some Assembly Required. Uh-oh. My track record for assembling things was miserable. Brooklyn-born, I was raised in apartment buildings in a family that didn't build things. A few years earlier, I'd spent one week assembling a six-foot –tall jungle gym from a kit containing so many parts. I spent the first four hours sorting and the last two hours trying to figure out why there were so many pieces. The day after I finished building it, as if to remind me of my limitations, a tornado (龙卷风) touched down close enough to scatter the jungle gym across an acre of field.

I assembled the Barbie Townhouse on Christmas Eve. Making it level ,keeping the columns from looking like they'd melted and been refrozen, and getting that elevator to work were almost more than I could manage. And building it in curse-free silence so my daughter would continue sleeping — added a layer of challenge. By dawn I was done.

Shortly thereafter, my daughter walked into the living room. Her surprise may not be real, but her delight was utterly genuine and moves me to this day, 34 years later. Rebecca had spurred me to do something I didn't think I could do. It was for her , and—like so much of the privilege of being her father—it brought me further outside myself and let me overcome doubts about my capacities.

37. In the author's eyes, his little daughter was .

A. obedient B. unstable

C. original D. stubborn

38. The author thought that his daughter's choice of the Barbie Townhouse .

A. was natural for a five-year-old girl.

B. was influenced by her life experience.

C. reflected the change in her taste.

D. brought her back to normal

39. For the author, assembling things .

A. was largely in his blood B. was a challenge be enjoyed

C. was always his weak point D. was part of his family education

40. Assembling the Barbie Townhouse .

A. brought out the author's potentials.

B. turned out to be easier than expected.

C. actually drove the author crazy.

D. was a bad memory for the author

41. In the last paragraph the author mainly expressed .

A. his pride in being a father B. his gratitude to his daughter

C. his concern about his capability D. his delight in helping his daughter

42. What can be learned about the relationship between the author and his daughter?

A. They are on good terms with each other.

B. They barely speak to each other.

C. They are polite but cold to each other.

D. They keep secrets from each other.

Passage Three

It is all very well to blame traffic jam, the cost of petrol and the fast pace of modern life, but manners on the roads are becoming deplorable. Everybody knows that the nicest men become monsters behind the wheel .It is all very well ,again m, to have a tiger in the tank, but to have one in the driver's seat is another matter . You might tolerate the odd road-hog(占道者),but nowadays the well-mannered motorist is the exception to the rule. Perhaps the situation calls for a "Be kind to Other Drives" campaign, otherwise it may get completely out of hand.

Road courtesy is not only good manners, but good sense too. It takes the most good-tempered of drivers to resist the temptation to hit back when subjected to uncivilized behavior .A friendly nod or a wave of acknowledgement in response to an act of courtesy helps to create an atmosphere of goodwill and tolerance so necessary in modern traffic conditions. But such acknowledgements of courtesy are all too rare today. Many drivers nowadays don't even seem able to recognize courtesy when they see it.

Contrary to general opinion, young drivers have better manners than their seniors. But this is short-lived in the world of modern driving where many drivers neither expect nor give any mercy. This may be encouraged on the battlefield but is our of place on the roads.

Lorry drivers say they have almost abandoned the practice of signaling cars to overtake when the road is clear, because many of the cars took too long to pass. They couldn't be bothered to select a lower gear.The car drivers, after overtaking, slowed down again and hogged the road. Again, a motoring magazine has recently drawn attention to the increasing number of drivers who never wait for gaps. "They manufacture them by force, using their direction indicators as a threat rather than a warning." Punch-ups(打群架) are quite common. It can't be long before we hear of pistols and knives being used.

Driving is essentially a state of mind. However technically skilled a driver may be, he can't be an advanced motorist if he is always arrogant and aggressive.

43. The author is most concerned about .

A.traffic jam B. road maners

C.fast pace of life D. high cost of petrol

44. The word "deplorable"(Para.1)most probably means" ".

A.more serious B.more tempting

C.disturbing D.noticeable

45.what is the main idea of Paragraph 2?

A.Many drivers tend to fight back against rude behaviors.

B. A little courtesy may help ease the tensions on the road.

C.Goodwill and tolerance may help relieve traffic jam.

D. Many drivers nowadays lack a good sense of courtesy.

46. It can be learned from Paragraph 3 that .

A.young drivers are more aggressive

B. young drivers would soon lose their good manners

C. elder drivers are more cautious

D. elder drivers should improve their driving skills

47. An example of good manners on the roads is .

A. signaling cars to overtake B. manufacturing a gap

C.selecting a lower gear D.using the direction indicator

48. According to the author, a good driver should_____.

A. be technically skilled B. have a good state of mind

C. be sympathetic with others D. take good care of his vehicle

Passage Four

On how the world has changed over the last 50 years, not all of it has been good. As you are looking for organic food information, you have obviously become aware that a better alternative exists and you are taking a critical look at the source and production practices of the companies producing the world's food supplies.

The purpose of organic food information is to give you an understanding of what is going into your food .You will see that there are many benefits to organic food that you didn't know before. The basis behind knowing about organic food information is the fact that farmers are resorting to using artificial fertilizers and pesticides(杀虫剂) to control disease and insect attack in order to produce more crops to satisfy growing demand. These artificial fertilizers leave something poisonous in and on the fruit and vegetables we consume which in turn is absorbed and stored by our bodies.

Even the quality of food has gone down in recent years. Today's fruits have nowhere near the Vitamin C levels they did at one time. However, with organic food information you learn that organic food has fifty percent more nutrients, minerals and vitamins than any other form of produce that has been grown under intensive farming. If you are eating non-organic produce you will have to eat more fruit in order to make up for this deficiency. But then the dangerous cycle continues since you will be eating more chemicals that are worse for your health than they are good for you.

Another aspect of organic food information is the production of meat and poultry (家禽). Most only consider produce when it comes to organic food information are being force fed. Ask yourself what happens to all these antibiotics and hormones when the animal is killeD.the remaining of these antibiotics and growth hormones reside in the meat which are then consumeD.digested and stored in human bodies. There is no way that an animal that isn't kept in healthy conditions can produce healthy food for humans to eat.

You have nothing to lose by trying organic product, not only will it be healthy for you but you will also be able to eat produce and meat the way they are supposed to be. You will likely be so impressed with the taste of organic fruit that you will never return to the mass-produced fruit again. While cost and availability can be a big issue for some, you can do a bit of research online and find a local store that stocks organic produce for a reasonable price.

49. It is stated in Paragraph 1 that organic food_____.

A. is considered as a better choice

B. is mostly supplied by world-famous companies

C. has become popular over the last 50 years

D. reflects the change of production practices

50.Farmers use artificial fertilizers and pesticides to _____.

A. satisfy people's critical demand B. develop better farming technology

C.get a higher crop yield D. keep people in better health

51. According to Paragraph 3. Organic food_____.

A. has gone down in quality B.has more nutrients

C.can replace mass-produced food D. lacks Vitamin C

52. What does the author say about meat and poultry?

A. Organic meat and poultry is hardly available.

B. A great amount of meat is consumed every year.

C.Merciless killing of the animals lowers their quality.

D. They may contain antibiotics and growth hormones.

53. In the last paragraph, people are advised to _____.

A. eat traditional produce and meat

B. return to mass-produced fruits

C.do the cost and availability research

D. try organic product for better health and taste

54.This passage is mainly about _____.

A. the benefits of organic food information

B. the challenges facing the world food industry

C. changes in food production practices

D. a growing demand for high quality food

Passage Five

Drinking wastewater? The idea may sound distasteful, but new federally funded research says more

Americans are doing so—whether they know or not—and this reuse will be increasingly necessary as the U.S. population expands.

Treated wastewater poses no greater health risks than existing water supplies anD.in some cases, may be even safer to drink, according to a report released by the National Research Council. "We believe water reuse is an option to deal with growing water scarcity, especially in coastal areas," says JÖrg Drewes, an engineering professor at the Colorado School of Mines. "This can be done reliable without putting the public at risk," he says, citing technological advances. He says it's a waste not to reuse the nation's wastewater, because almost all of it is treated before discharge. This water includes storm runoff(径流) as well as used water from homes, businesses and factories.

In many places, the report says, the public does not realize it's drinking water that was treated after being discharged as wastewater somewhere upstream. For example, wastewater discharged into the Trinity River from Dallsa/Fort Worth flows south into Lake Livingston, the source for Houston's drinking water.

Despite the growing importance of this reuse, the report says there's been no systemic analysis of its extent nationwide since a 1980 study by the U.S.Environmental Protection Agency(EPA). Alan Roberson of the American Water Works Association says wastewater reuse is common, so the council's report is important but not surprising. Roberson expects this recycling will continue to increase, especially for irrigation and industrial needs. He says it will take longer to establish potable(适于饮用的) uses because of public nervousness about drinking wastewater, however treated.

"We have to do something to address water scarcity, " says Olga Naidenko, a senior scientist at the non-profit Environmental Working Group."Less than 10% of potable water is used for drinking, cooking ,showering or dishwashing, We flush it down the toilet, literally." Technologies exist to safely treat the water,.she says,. although some are expensive.

The report says water reuse projects tend to cost more than most water conservation options but less than seawater desalination （脱盐）and other supply alternatives . It calls on the EPA to develop rules that set safe national standards.

55. As can be learned from Paragraph 1 , drinking wastewater _____ .

A. is to become a growing necessity

B. is well received by the Americans

C. has caused heated public debates

D. has become the dominant option

56. Which of the following statements would Jorg Drewes agree to ?

A. Water reuse may eventually put the public at risk.

B. Water reuse is preferable to wasting water.

C. Water reuse is far from a solution to water shortage.

D. Water reuse is possible only after greater tech advances.

57. Lake Livingston is mentioned to show that the public _____ .

A. accepts the fact of drinking wastewater calmly

B. is concerned about the safety of the drinking water

C. does not believe that wastewater is safe to drink

D. is not aware of the nature of their drinking water

58. According to Alan Roberson,_____ .

A. it is not safe to drink wastewater

B. the report has surprised the public

C. the report helps build up public confidence

D. the public has yet to accept drinking wastewater

59. Olga Naidenko's remarks emphasize _____ .

A. the recent progress

B. the existing problems

C. the new perspective

D. the potential risks

60. What does the report suggest to the EPA ?

A. Weighing different water conservation options.

B. Exploring new technologies to treat wastewater.

C. Setting up national standards for water reuse.

D. Monitoring water supplies at a national level.

A survey made recently indicates that most of buildings in China, no matter for office or residential purpose, all consume more electricity and water resources compared to that of foreign countries. For instance, energy consumption for Beijing residents is three times as much as that of the families in north German under the similar weather conditions. As an energy shortage country, therefore we Chinese should cherish resources so as to ensure the sustainable development for Chinese economy.

Who and How to Take Care of Seniors?

Since China adopted one-child policy, together with improvement made in the social undertakings such as welfare and health care, there has emerged a problem of how to support seniors in recent years.

As every coin has two sides, the side effect of one-child policy has appeared, for example, the child regarded by other family members as the little prince or princess, always has his wishes satisfied without difficulty. Growing up in this family, no wonder they lack in sense of caring for others and learning to be independent of parents. Can they support their aging parents whose life expectancy has been prolonged?

To effectively cope with this social problem of taking care of seniors today, I may put forward several suggestions as follows: First, young adults in a family should spend more time with their elder members, giving financial help, chatting over favorite topics, doing family work. Secondly, the governments at all levels should finance the construction of more seniors care centers for aged people who wish to lessen the burden of their children. Last but not the least, the sense of responsibility for caring the seniors should be planted to the heart of everyone.

To sum up, I firmly hold that taking care of the seniors is one of Chinese traditional virtue and it involves the effort of young adults together with love from every corner of the society, particular social institutions. Only by doing so can we build a harmonious society.

Self-confidence Is a Key to Success

From what is illustrated in this picture /as can be seen from the above picture, the man with full-confidence finally steps up to the championship while the non-confident person becomes the steps of the successful man. It is supposed that success is a beautiful dream that everyone wants to come true. However, there are many factors led to success. But it is no doubt that self-confidence is one of the keys to success.

There are various reasons accounting for this. Since we have to live in an on-the-move lifestyle, we may encounter various troubles on the way to success. When coming cross difficulties, we must be confident to overcome them, only through which can we finally achieve the goal. Furthermore, if we are not self-confident when we confront dilemma, we would not realize not only the personal dream but also the national dream. And no issue in China is as basic to build up the society in harmony as to conduct coordination in face of disaster.

From what we discussed above, we can safely draw the conclusion that self-confidence is a key to success both for the personal and the nation. If we uphold the sprite of self-confidence, we are able to conquer all the difficulties and achieve the goal no matter how serious the difficulties are!

My Opinion About Blog

——Do Not Be A Victim of the Drawbacks Blog

It has to be noticed that nowadays blog has become more and more popular even among most common people. Needless to say, this issue has aroused great concern among the general public. From my perspective, more drawbacks may arise as a result of setting up personal blog.

As evidence to support my viewpoint, several disadvantages may stand out as follows：to begin with, blog tends to make people far away from real life day by day. They would like to express their ideas only by writing in their blogs instead of communicating with their friends, even family members. What’s more, they dislike to open hearts or to express feelings to others, by which they are isolated from the society as well as from the people who care for them.

Therefore, from what has been discussed above, we can arrive at a conclusion that people should talk more with people loving you around, rather than type in front of the cold screen.

The short paragraph above tells us a real story about the history of the well-known writing “French Revolution History”. The author historian Claire suffered from frustration and lost his script of “French Revolution History” in the course of writing, which could have broken him down, however, the great historian was not beat by the suffering and found his confidence back and started his composition from the beginning. At last he finished his great writing with unyielding will.

The course of creation of the composition shows us a truth that unyielding will is the key to success. Reviewing the whole story, what helped the author get to the success was just his perseverance. He did not give up his goal even when suffered from a great strike, which made me remember a thing happening upon me.

Once I wanted to join in the football team in our school but was refused by them because of my poor performance. Then I never gave up my dream and kept practicing my skills although it was a tough period. At last I made it and got the permission to the team.

Actually the two stories have the same meaning that is unyielding will is the most important element on the way to the success.

How to Handle the Stress

Nowadays more and more people have been under various stresses and there has been an increase in stress-related diseases among employees and students. This phenomenon has aroused immediate concern and widespread discussion among the general public. From my perspective, the resources of stresses can be from our work, family and also from the society, and learning how to deal with stresses has far-reaching significance to our body health.

As a matter of fact, some solutions to reduce stresses can be illustrated below. The first one that comes to my mind readily is to share our stress with others. It can be enormously helpful because we may feel quite relaxed after talking to others and things even turn better if we get any valuable suggestions from them. What's more, making time for fun such as listening to music and watching movies may be good medicine. Additionally, it is also a great way to reduce anxiety to do a large number of physical activities.

From what has been discussed above, I strongly believe that we should know how to reduce enormous stress because it poses a general threat to human body health. As a common employee, I often feel immense stress at work. In those cases, I always tried to talk with my close friends to hear their advice or just listen to my favorite music. Only by having both mental and physical health can we hope to do our job well in the future.

The Favorite Way of Keeping Fit

Nowadays it has to be admitted that the whole society is faced with 'health issue'. According to a recent survey conducted on the Internet, 42 in a hundred people are likely to suffer from vital diseases after retirement. This phenomenon has led to considerable thoughts and considerations about the issue of health among the general public. For my perspective, I believe that proper diet and exercise are the upmost importance to health.

First, diet, this will undoubtedly become the prior one. Mounting fruits and vegetables are supposed to be listed in daily menu for their plenty of fibers and little fat. As a remarkable proverb says," An apple a day keeps the doctor away." Second, those food contain too much fat and sugar, such as candies, butter, pork and chocolate, should be kept under strict limit line. And excessive coffee is harmful too. Third, exercise comes up closely. Regular exercise burns extra energy and builds proper shapes. For instance, people with habit of jogging everyday are much healthier than those without it.

From what has been discussed above, I believe that these aspects should be given due attention now. On one hand, people should always bear these in mind for their own level; On the other hand, more advanced health information shall be open to the public. Only in this way can we keep good health and enjoy a pleasant life.
