Why do kids hate Brussels sprouts (芽甘蓝)? Because Brussels sprouts are bitter, and kids generally don't like bitter tastes. But it's not their 61 Researchers say that a dislike for bitter and sour is a survival instinct, since most toxic substances 62 that way too. On the other hand, sweetness typically indicates that something is 63 to eat, so children are born with a 64 for sweets.

What we like to eat changes over time. As we age, we realize that 65 something tastes bitter or sour, it won't kill us, and we learn to 66 it. When we're older, we 67 some of our smell sensitivity. Humans need smell to experience flavor, which is different from taste. With our senses diminished, we'll probably begin 68 sugar and salt to our food, to heighten the flavor.

69 , there's a theory that the reason many especially "big" -tasting wines in recent years have won awards is that wine critics are getting older and finding subtle flavors 70 to sense.

If someone is 71 to detect flavors at all, he may have a taste 72 , which can be caused by a tongue injury or brain damage. Or it could be a problem with 73 . The channel that separates the mouth from the nose allows us to smell behind our nose and is 74 enjoying most complex flavors. That's why food seems 75 when we have a stuffy nose—except chicken noodle soup. It's so salty.

Ironically, a study finds that we're awful gift-givers precisely because we spend too much time trying to be considerate. We imagine our friends___46___a gift that is impressive, expensive, and sentimental. We imagine the look of happiness and surprise on their faces and the warmth we feel___47___. But there's something that the most sentimental gift-givers tend not to think too much about:___48___the gift is practical in the first place.

___49___, practicality seems like an enemy of great gift giving. Beautiful jewelry, lovely watches, perfect rugs, finely crafted kitchen hardware: These things___50___great gifts because they communicate something beyond practicality. They communicate that the giver cares.

But do the receivers care? Often, no. "Gift receivers would be___51___if givers gave them exactly what they requested___52___attempting to be 'thoughtful and considerate' by buying gifts they did not explicitly request" to surprise them, the researchers write.

Their clever paper asks givers and receivers to___53___gifts from two perspectives: desirability (e.g. the cost of a coffee maker) and feasibility(e.g. the___54___of the coffee maker).Across several experiments, they find that givers consistently give gifts based on desirability and receivers___55___favor gifts based on feasibility.

When asked about the impact of disturbing news on children, one mother said: “My 11-year-old daughter doesn’t like watching the news. She has___46___about what she has seen. One time, she watched a report about a person who killed a family member with a knife. That night she dreamed that she too was being killed.”

Another interviewee said: “ My six-year-old niece saw reports of tornadoes(龙卷风)from elsewhere in the country. For weeks__47__, she was terrified. She___48___call me on the phone, convinced that a tornado was coming her way and that she was going to die.”

Do you think disturbing news reports can frighten children? In one survey, nearly 40 percent of parents said that their children had been 49 by something they saw in the news and that,___50___, the children had feared that a similar event would happen to them or their loved ones. Why? One factor is that children often___51___the news differently from adults For example, small children may believe that a___52___that is broadcast repeatedly is really happening repeatedly.

A second factor is that daily reports of disturbing events can distort a child ‘s___53___of the world. True, we live in “critical times hard to 54___. “

But repeated exposure to disturbing news reports can cause children to develop lasting fears. "Children who watch a lot of TV news___55___to overestimate the occurrence of crime and may perceive the world to be a more dangerous place than it actually is," observes the Kaiser Family Foundation.

The history of transportation is very long and full of changes and inventions. It starts ___46___ walking, which is not any invention; it just takes energy. People used to walk to get to other places. If you wanted to get somewhere quickly, the ___47___ way to do that was to run. Actually, the first invention for transportation ___48___ was the shoe. Centuries ago there were no shoes, and people walked barefoot.

Then people invented ___49___ to transport themselves and materials from one place to another. In some culture, people invented sledges (雪橇), ___50___ are a kind of board that you drag along the ground. You can tie things on the sledge to help carry them, but it's a challenging invention ___51___ if you hit a rock with the sledge as you pull it, the contents can ___52___.

In other cultures, people invented the wheel, which they used to make it easier to move things and people. That was the beginning of many innovations in transportation.

___53___ people had wheels they could invent other ways to travel. They could put the wheel on a board and make it a wagon, and then they could ___54___ that wagon to an ox or a horse and ride as well as carry materials.

That wheel led to ___55___ we have today: trucks, automobiles, and even boats and planes. For example, there were steamboats that used giant wheels that turned with blades, pushing the water and pushing the boat forward.
